ENCOURAGING news for those studying the world problem of cancer. Investigators at the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research discover that a certain type of cancer in chickens contains its own healing agent. Scientists hope for a similar discovery in the human form of the disease.

When this writer visited the Rockefeller Institute with John D. Rockefeller, Jr., some time ago to see the famous Dr. Carrel perform an operation for removal of tubercular tissue in the lung, scientists had transplanted cancer in a hen to make it grow. At that time transplanting and growth had been successful only once. On the other hand, scores of white mice and rats had transplanted cancer that had grown bigger than the rest of the animals' bodies.

The fight against cancer is slow, but sure, and will be victorious in time.

A young Mexican genius, Augusto Novaro, musician and mathematician, has discovered a new harmony, based on mathematics. His method is complicated, but simpler than Einstein.

More important, to the world and to Mexico, is the fact that the Mexican government's welcome to a large colony of Slavs, presumably Russians, dissatisfied with the Soviet system of government. Lands will be provided and Mexico will make them prosperous, while they contribute to Mexican prosperity.

Just as this country in the early days when there were needed all kinds of people from Europe, so Mexico, with its population of earnest, energetic men, needs all kinds of mixtures from Europe now. Thirty million intelligent Europeans, from Germany, France, Italy, Russia, Scandinavia and the Balkans, would enable Mexico to build her own ports, deal directly with Europe, and Asia, on a gigantic scale, becoming entirely independent of the United States, financially and commercially.

Some weeks ago, here, you were warned that bad news of 1930 operating results, leaking out gradually, would discourage stock speculation. Some of it came out yesterday, when the New York Central Railroad, among the most prosperous and valuable in the United States, cut its dividend for the first time since 1911. This is due to earnings in the past, and should not influence men's judgment for the present. But it will influence it.

From the train a few miles outside of Colton, Cal., at four in the morning, you could see a magnificent star shining just above the horizon, a pale blue sky, a faint color below telling that the sun would soon rise.

Suddenly came beside the track a high, long, black stone mountain. Glorious star, and color of the rising sun were both shut out. One of the ephemerides, winged creatures that live only from sunrise to sundown, would have said: "Too bad, star and sunrise are gone. We shall never see them again."

But a moment later the mountain passed, the star was still there.

Wall Street speculators and many business men feel about the beautiful star PROSPERITY temporarily behind a cloud as the ephemerides would feel about the vanished star.

The archbishop of Canterbury, head of the English Church, on the yacht of J. Pierpont Morgan, will visit Jerusalem with the American banker. The Associated Press says:

"The Holy See has made representation to the British government regarding a situation which might be created in Jerusalem" by this visit.

It is feared by Vatican authorities that the visit might be interpreted "as an Anglican bid for possession of the Holy Sepulchre."

To the layman, all this is difficult to understand. The possession and guarding of the Holy Sepulchre is now entrusted to four religions, Roman Catholic, [illegible], Armenian and Copt. What difference it would make to let the English come on for 20 per cent of the glory and responsibility is hard to understand.

The Irish Free State on St. Patrick's day will be dry. Effort to open saloons at certain hours as on Sunday, next Tuesday, will not pass the Dail Eireann.

The Irish express just contempt for our efforts at prohibition, but a statement by Frank Aiken, visiting the United States, as representative of De Valera, was somewhat exaggerated. He said that among millions of people here, he did not see a man, woman or child sober.

HARVARD BOY FOUND IN COMA

LEDYARD IS STRICKEN ON POST ROAD

Lewis Cass Ledyard, 3d, 19, Harvard freshman and heir to the Lewis Cass Ledyard millions of New York, was found in a comatose condition early today on Boston Post rd. near Bridgeport, Ct.

With Lloyd Moore of Pride's Crossing, a fellow student, Ledyard was returning from a trip to Moore's home in Groton, N. H., when he was stricken.

State Troopers John Hanusevsky and Thomas Shaw found the youth doubled in pain, seated on the side of young Moore's automobile. Frantically trying to find a doctor to aid his friend.

TAKEN TO FAIRFIELD.

Shaw and Hanusevsky took the boy to Dr. S. L. Biehn of Fairfield, Ct., who revived him enough so that he could reach the Bean Hotel at Bridgeport.

Dr. Biehn said the boy was suffering from effects of activities as a member of a class crew at Harvard too soon after an operation that took place six weeks ago for appendicitis.

In a telephone conversation with the Boston Evening American young Ledyard from his bed in the Bean hotel said he suffered excruciating pain for miles of the ride but insisted on Moore continuing so they could return for studies at Harvard today.

"I guess the pain became too great," he said, "for the next thing I remember was the doctor treating me."

WIRES TO FATHER

He said he and Moore intended driving all night in the hope of returning to studies at daylight but the pain overcame him.

Ledyard lives at 24 Russell Hall at the college and is the son of Lewis Cass Ledyard, Jr., New York capitalist and corporation lawyer and grandson of Lewis Cass Ledyard, who was commodore of the New York Yacht Club and associate of the elder J. P. Morgan.

Moore, according to the college records, prepared for Harvard at the exclusive Eton school in England.

COAST GUARD SHIPS REST ON SEWER PIPE

COAST GUARD patrols C G 199 and C G 171, nosed buried in the shore of Deer Island, stern resting against the huge metropolitan sewage pipe that runs along the southeastern tip of the island. The C G 171 went aground first and the C G 199 followed trying to free its sister ship. When low tide came it found both boats resting on the sewer pipe. An effort will be made to pull them off at high tide this evening. (Staff photo.)

MYSTERIOUS CALLER ON WIDOW IS SOUGHT

(By a Staff Correspondent)

Haverhill, March 12—Efforts to establish the identity of the mysterious visitor at the home of Mrs. Clara E. Ellis the night she was slain with a hammer were begun today by counsel for Russell Noble, 17-year-old student, charged with her murder.

"Who was he? What were his motives? Was there a quarrel?"

These questions were asked by the boy's senior counsel, Richard J. Mednick, who said the State failed to account for 10 minor wounds on the body of Mrs. Ellis during the court hearing which resulted in Noble being held for the grand jury.

The defense contends that even the prosecution does not claim the "model boy" was responsible for the multiple wounds (black and blue) wounds on the legs and arms of the society widow.

"Who, then, was responsible for them?" asked McCormick.

The latest hypothesis, that Noble found the rich widow unconscious and bleeding when he invaded her mansion and fled in panic, his sole loot the $75 wrist watch, came to the front with renewed prominence today.

INJURIES EXPLAINED

It was contended that the black and blue marks on the victim's lower body tended to substantiate the new theory.

Dr. Francis W. Anthony, medical examiner, recounted the three fractures of the woman's skull and a mouth injury. The head wounds, he said, were consistent with the blows from a hammer.

Noble, in his "confession," is quoted as admitting that he struck Mrs. Ellis with a hammer and that, in warding off the blow at him, he struck her on the mouth with a lamp.

Dr. Anthony described the black and blue marks on the victim's body in detail. It was the first time that the character of the mystery wounds had been made public. Their discovery adds another baffling phase to the hammer tragedy.

10 MYSTERY BRUISES

"I was tremendously interested in Medical Examiner Anthony's description of the black and blue mar'ks found on Mrs. Ellis' body," said Attorney McCormick today.

"They throw a new light on the case. My client had no opportunity to make them. For the sake of argument, accepting that portion of Noble's alleged confession, it is noted that he made no mention whatever of the 10 wounds.

"As the medical examiner testified, there was a black and blue mark on the left thigh three inches long and an inch and a half wide. There were black and blue marks on both sides of

FLY WINNER IN HOUSE FIGHT

Gov. Ely scored a signal triumph amid turbulent scenes in the House today on his $11,500,000 unemployment relief and construction program.

The House reconsidered yesterday's rejection of the measure, and then passed the bill to a third reading.

The vote on the latter was 98 to 84 on a standing tally, and when Republican floor leaders, in a last effort to halt passage, doubted its accuracy, a rollcall showed 114 in favor and 79 opposed.

The bill provides for an increase in the gasoline tax from two to three cents, to finance a short-term borrowing of $11,500,000 for highways and construction of a building for the public works department.

The Governor favored long-term borrowing, but was willing to accept this compromise proposed by the Republican-controlled ways and means committee.

After sharp debate, which delighted the crowded gallery, the House voted to reconsider its adverse action of yesterday by 116 to 88, a standing vote.

The bill will come up again later for a third reading, that is, on the final passage.

The bill, if passed, would give employment within a short time to 7000 men.

Reconsideration was moved at the start of today's session, amid a generally tense atmosphere, by Rep. Francis E. Rafter of Salem, Democrat, who yesterday failed in an effort to have the House adopt the bond issue program.

War Transport Plan Offered by Willard

Washington, March 12 (AP)—Creation of an intelligent peacetime organization of railroad executives to take over the operation of all transportation systems at the outbreak of a war was recommended to the War Policies Commission today by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio.

Willard said the plan would bring all the railroads under unified management within 24 hours after the start of a war.

Hoover—Robinson— It's All Settled

Atlantic City, N. J., March 12 (INS)—Both major parties will have "ardent drys" as presidential candidates in 1932 and their platforms also will be dry, Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Morals, predicted today.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas and Herbert Hoover will be the respective candidates, he said.

Garretts' Guests Named

Simultaneously revealed as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver B. Garrett at a champagne dinner at the Hotel Ritz, Miss Margaret Innes, a Back Bay dressmaker, and Fred Cox of Huntington ave., Back Bay, were witnesses today at the Garrett trial.

Both were called by the government on the fourth day of trial of the former police liquor raider, his wife and Lillian V. Hatch, all charged with conspiracy to extort from John F. Sullivan, the Ritz proprietor.

Sullivan's testimony was concluded this morning, shortly after the books of the Sullivan Hotel Co., which owned the Ritz, were introduced in evidence.

He was followed on the stand by Mrs. Mabel S. Worcester, hostess of the Franklin Square House, and Miss Florence H. Luscomb, a welfare worker, both of whom testified to observing vice conditions at the Ritz.

FLORES CLAIMS DEATH PLOT

Provincetown, March 12 (INS)—Rum runners attempted to take his life by shooting, Frank Flores, chairman of the board of health, revealed to police today.

Flores said he believed the attempt on his life was made because he was blamed for revealing the hiding place of more than 600 cases of liquor, resulting in a raid on the cache by amateur hi-jackers. He refused to divulge the identity of the men he claimed threatened to kill him.

Monday night, he said, he was walking down Bradford st. when he heard a rifle shot and then heard a bullet whiz by his head and thud against a sand bank. He ran.

'WETS FAVORED' —WICKERSHAM

In his first address on the subject since the report was made, George W. Wickersham, chairman of the commission which made it, uttered this statement today before the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

"I should have thought the 'wets' would have derived more encouragement from the report and the separate statements of the commissioners attached to it, than the drys," he asserted.

Another significant statement in his address was:

"Some of us, of whom I am one, feared that any of the modifications proposed would lead to restoration of the saloon, and therefore were unwilling at this time to abandon all efforts to bring about a general observance of the 18th Amendment."

Regarding loss of the report on conditions in Massachusetts, he said it was to be regretted, but there is nothing the Law Enforcement Commission can do about it.

He stated that control of liquor will always require federal action and active co-operation of the state governments.

He explained that commission members who signed the report while annexing statements favoring modification or repeal, recognized there must be enforcement pending a change in the law, which will require time.

DEFENCE SEES LOOPHOLE IN WIDOW'S MYSTERY WOUNDS

POLICE UNDER FIRE FOR GRILLING

"This adds a sinister aspect to the case. It brings to mind the unknown visitor. Who was he? What were his motives? Was there a quarrel? The mystery wounds suggest no end of questions.

"Russell Noble stood the ordeal of the arraignment for murder and the two hour hearing very well. I plan to have a long chat with him in Lawrence jail today. I cannot at this time outline our definite defense as we are still busy weaving loose ends."

The accused honor student was back in Lawrence jail today, facing a long and tedious wait for grand jury action. Judge John J. Wilan bound him over on all three charges, in $50,000 for assault with intent to murder charge, $1000 on the breaking and entering charge, and without bail on the charge of murder.

The first two charges were brought prior to Mrs. Ellis' death. They will undoubtedly be dropped by the grand jury.

All the glamour and thrill have vanished for the "model boy."

Russell got a "kick" out of it all the first week, but 11 days in a cell have driven home to the boy the seriousness of the predicament.

SOLEMN IN COURT

That he realizes the gravity of his plight was easy to see during his day in court yesterday. His face was pale and for the most part his expression was solemn and worried.

True, he found occasion to smile, for example, when he greeted his pastor, the Rev. George E. Carey, who sat within the bar inclosure. But when it was time for lunch, not once did he shed a tear.

He was glad to get a glimpse of the outdoors during the swift ride to and from Lawrence jail. He was glad to see familiar faces in his home town and to hear the shouts from the throng such as:

"Cheer up, kiddo." "Don't lose courage, Russ!" "Keep a stiff upper lip," and "We're with you."

EVIDENCE WITHHELD

Cassidy's version, which was read into the records and which proved the climax of the hearing, is not the entire confession, however. The state has held in reserve much detail of the boy's alleged admissions to the police.

Only two witnesses were heard yesterday, Medical Examiner Antonetty and Inspector Cassidy.

Noble has a strange personality and a contradictory countenance. One minute he has the face of a cherub and the next it is stern and determined. He is a psychological puzzle.

ASKS TO VISIT GRAVE

His ignorance of legal procedure was demonstrated on several occasions yesterday. With boyish candor he asked Atty. McCormick to fix it so that he could go to his father's grave while he was in Haverhill.

"I'm awfully sorry, Russell," said Atty. McCormick soothingly, "but I'm afraid they couldn't let you go to the cemetery today."

"Well, then, I can think of Dad from the dock here and perhaps he and mother, who lies with him, are thinking of me," said Russell solemnly.

Russell gave his brother, Charles, $3 to get flowers for their father's grave in Linwood Avenue Cemetery. Charles and James, another brother, chipped in a few more dollars, bought a wreath, and placed it on the grave where their parents sleep.

Russell seemed particularly interested while his counsel was interrogating Inspector Cassily, about the "third degree" at Haverhill police headquarters on Saturday night, February 28.

He showed keen interest, too, when Atty. McCormick asked Cassily if the officers had mentioned the Taylor case at Salisbury and remarked upon the "similarity of the cases." Cassily hotly denied this.

DISLIKES HANDCUFFS

"A fellow just offered me a drink in the court basement," said Charlie to Russell at recess. "I sure felt like it but I turned it down."

"No doubt you do, Charlie," said Russell. "You've been awfully good to me. You've been just wonderful. You must be worn out, but for my sake and Dad's sake don't take a drink on his anniversary. Promise me, Charlie."

"Here's my hand on it, Russ," said Charlie.

It was a day of sensation for the "model boy." He felt the grip of "bracelets" for the first time.

"Please don't make it too tight," said Russell to Lieut. Orvin J. Lagasse.

"I'll try not to, Russell," said the officer. "Slip it under your sleeve and I'll cover mine and nobody in the crowd will notice them."

IN JAIL UNTIL MAY

Noble worked his end of the handcuff up as high as possible. He grimaced. He had often seen them snapped on offenders in the movies and read about them in the murder mystery stories for which he developed a passion before himself becoming the central figure in one of New England's strangest murder mysteries.

Russell Noble thought of those hands of steel long after he was locked up in his cell in Essex County jail, where he will remain until the report of the grand jury in May.

NOBLE BOY AN ENIGMA, SAYS HIS JAILER

Only Once Has He Betrayed Dissatisfaction With the Prison Confinement

Lawrence, March 12—George Bunting, keeper of the Essex County jail, where Russell Noble, 17-year-old high school youth, is held for the grand jury in the hammer slaying of Mrs. Clara E. G. Ellis, today admitted himself baffled by Noble's seeming lackadaisical attitude toward his confinement.

Only once, Bunting said, has his prisoner betrayed any sign that he finds his narrow cell irksome. That was this morning when a guard was leading him back to the cell after the prison breakfast of cereal, bread and coffee.

The blonde youth, whose love of the outdoors has been a dominant factor in his life since early childhood, hesitated on the threshold and shook his head.

"Gee," he said, "this is pretty tough, having to lie around with nothing to do."

HARD TO CLASSIFY

Then he entered the cell and the guard closed and locked the barred door.

Bunting said Noble's present close confinement would probably be lightened within a few days, after a careful study of his mental condition.

"Ordinarily it takes but a few hours' observation to decide how to treat a prisoner," Bunting said, "but this boy is an enigma. It's not natural for anyone accustomed to freedom to fall so easily into prison routine.

"The first few days are generally hard and marked by feverish unrest and as much activity as is possible.

GIVES NO SIGN

"In my time here I've had three men waiting indictment for murder, and I found their mental states demanded some sort of work—painting, brass polishing, anything to take their minds off themselves.

"But this boy—I don't know what to do with him. He reads all day, comes out calmly for his two hours' exercise in the corridors, and goes back to his cell, without a sign that he realizes his desperate situation."

At present Noble is not allowed the freedom of the assembly hall in which to lounge with those of his fellow-prisoners who have shown themselves reconciled to their confinement.

His taste in reading has changed from the crime tales of the first days of his prison life to magazines and newspaper sport stories.

Baltimore, March 12—Mayor Broening has invited the War Department to transfer maneuvers planned for Boston. The invitation was sent to F. Trubee Davidson, assistant Secretary of War, after the Mayor read press despatches from Boston indicating citizens were opposed to the demonstration.

JEALOUSY LED TO KILLING BY 'CINDERELLA'

Beauty Slew Him After Quarrel and Claims Self-Defense

Nice, France, March 12—Jealousy of a husband nearly 30 years older than herself was blamed today for the fatal shooting of Frederick G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, New Yrok and Philadelphia theater magnate, in a statement made to police by Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger, his "Cinderella" wife, who is held, pending further investigation into the case.

No charge has been made against her.

His wife is the former Charlotte Isabel Nash, who won international recognition as a beauty in the Atlantic City pulchritude pageant in 1928, entering as "Miss St. Louis."

According to police, Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger claims she shot her husband in self-defense.

FEARED FOR OWN LIFE

"Do you regret your act?" police asked her as she faced a merciless grilling.

"If I hadn't killed him, then I would be dead," was the reply.

Her account of the shooting as given to police in a formal statement follows:

"After dinner my husband started drinking whiskey. I undressed to go to bed and, returning to the salon started to read an Italian paper. He, infuriated, said that my desire to learne that language was because I had an Italian sweetheart. This started the quarrel.

"I went to bed, but I took the precaution of putting the revolver I bought three months ago under my pillow because he had threatened me before. He was only half undressed when he started talking about an Italian suitor.

"Suddenly, leaning over my bed, he seized me by the throat. I managed to escape him and seized my revolver. I fired it once full into his face and then three more times."

WAS "PERFECT LADY"

Their two children, aged 3 and 18 months, who were not awakened by the shooting, were under the care of the janitress.

The tragedy ends a romance that attracted the world; a romance that started in the fading summer of 1927, when Charlotte Nash, her famed dimples in full blossom, walked down the Atlantic City boardwalk.

Charlotte Nash won first prize in the boardwalk parade, and was fourth among the international beauties. Nixon-Nirdlinger, known at Philadelphia and Baltimore simply as Nirdlinger, presented a cup to Charlotte Nash.

And then a strange thing happened. Nirdlinger announced:

"I will make her the most attractive woman in all history."

A man of wealth and influence he enrolled Charlotte Nash in the fashionable National Park Seminary at Forest Glen, Maryland. Her tutors were instructed to mold her into the "perfect lady," and Charlotte had a full life as a student.

Lady Wilkins

Sir Hubert made that clear last night at the annual dinner of the geographical society of Philadelphia, at which he received the Elisha Kent Kane medal, the highest honor in the gift of the society, and which is awarded for the outstanding geographic research.

Sir Hubert said Lady Wilkins would accompany him to Norway, "but this is as far as she will go."

TRAGEDY DIMS SMILE

'BOY WITH CUPID BOW LIPS' HAPPY AS COURT JAILS HIM IN HAMMER DEATH

IT IS TO LAUGH AT FATE'S FOLLY

Judging from his smile, Russell Noble never had a happier day than the one upon which the court in Haverhill found "probable cause" and uttered the fateful words of "to jail, without bail." Here he is as he left the courthouse to return to his cheerless cell in the Lawrence jail. (Staff photos.)

"KISSABLE LIPS" OF HAVERHILL'S MODEL BOY COULD NOT RESTRAIN A PLEASING SMILE AS THEY WERE SENT BACK BEHIND THE BARS

If being ignominiously jailed in the hammer murder of Mrs. Clara E. Ellis, wealthy Haverhill society widow, made so much as a dent in the consciousness of Russell Noble, 17, "good boy," no one could guess the fact from his demeanor. He pucked his lips in what the girls call a "kissable cupid's bow," then smiled—and went back to his cell to await action by the grand jury and then, possibly, trial on a charge of pounding to death a woman who is alleged to have befriended him. Photos show him in three court poses—in all of which he was happy.

PHILADELPHIA WANTS COMMUNIST MURDOCK

FACES ARREST WHEN SET FREE HERE

William Murdock, one of the three Communists in the East Boston immigration station awaiting deportation hearings, will be arrested on a fugitive from justice warrant when he is released on bail from the federal detention pen today.

The warrant was issued in East Boston District Court following receipt of a telegram from the Philadelphia police, which said Murdock had been arrested there last year charged with inciting a riot. He defaulted, according to the Philadelphia police.

Harry Cantor, Communist leader, said that $5000 bail would be furnished today for Murdock's release on federal charges growing out of his participation in the recent Lawrence mill strike.

Edith Berkman and Patrick Devine, fellow Communists of Murdock, arrested with him in the strike riots, were released from the immigration station in the same amount of bail a week ago. They have returned to Lawrence.

U. S. MEN RAID CAPONE CLUB

Chicago, March 12 (AP)—Federal prohibition agents early today raided the Cotton Club of Ralph Capone in Cicero, used acetylene torches to open the safe and seized records for use in their investigation of the liquor traffic.

The raid itself was the upshot of a previous visit to the club by Roy Budd and Dan Copely, federal prohibition officers, when they were accosted by an unknown gunman and Jack Karron, the club's doorman.

Despite the fact that they revealed their identities, Budd and Copely said they were taken to the Cicero police headquarters.

U. S. FLIERS TRY TIME RECORD

Jacksonville Beach, Fla., March 12 (AP)—After being in the air 24 hours, Walter Lees and Frederick Brossy, Packard Motor Co. pilots, announced today they would seek to break the non-refueling endurance record of 75 hours and 23 minutes made March 1 by two French fliers.

The airmen went aloft at 8:22 a. m., E. S. T., yesterday. This is the first attempt to set an endurance record with an oil burning motor, Lees said, in a note he dropped on the beach this morning.

Chain Store Man to Wed Lowell Widow

Warren, N. H., March 12—Ira H. Morse of Lowell, Mass., wealthy owner of a chain of shoe stores, who obtained a Reno divorce a short time ago, will be married here today to Mrs. Julia Mahoney, widow of Dr. Mathey Mahoney, Lowell physician, who died several years ago.

FRIENDLY THIEF ROBS BYRD OF COAT

Jacksonville, Fla., March 12 (AP)—Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd is without a good overcoat today because he was accommodating and tried, while in Florida, to do as the Floridians do.

He came here yesterday and newspaper photographers surrounded him at the railway station. In Florida it isn't customary for anyone to have a picture taken while wearing an overcoat, they explained and wouldn't he please lay it aside.

The admiral then turned to the friendly stranger who had seemed so eager to help.

The stranger, however, had vanished and so had the overcoat.

HAIRS MAY NET GIRL'S SLAYER

San Diego, Cal., March 12 (INS)—Police searching for the slayer of Virginia Brooks, 10, today pinned their hopes of solving the brutal murder on two strands of hair found in the dead girl's hand.

The child's dismembered body was found wrapped in a burlap bag on Camp Kearney mesa Tuesday.

D. J. Bryan, one of two suspects, was held pending a microscopic test of his hair.

Oklahoma City, March 12 (AP)—A man booked as Gerald Davison, 55, was held here today by police who said they would question him in connection with the murder of Virginia Brooks, 10-year-old San Diego, Cal., school girl.

Police said the man had been arrested several times at Tulsa for molesting girls.

Brockton Man Held for Break in Store

Brockton, March 12—John J. McSweeney, 33, was arraigned in court here today charged with breaking and entering the store of Sarah Harb at 70 Elliot st. last night.

McSweeney pleaded not guilty and was held in $500 bonds for the grand jury. The police say McSweeney threw a stone through the window and then hid to see that no one appeared on the scene. Police arrested him under a counter in the store.

LEGS DIAMOND IN DEATH HUNT

Albany, N. Y., March 12 (INS)—Search for two men wanted for questioning in the Vivian Gordon murder was under way today by State troopers in the Catskill mountains near the home of Jack (Legs) Diamond.

Fifteen State police under command of Captain John Keeley yesterday visited Diamond's home, an inn nearby and an inn at Cairo in search for two men, according to Major John A. Warner, superintendent of State police.

Major Warner confirmed reports that Diamond was not at home when his place was visited by State police.

ALASKA NEEDS MORE SERUM

Point Barrow, Alaska, March 12 (AP)—A renewed outbreak of diphtheria gripped this settlement today, overflowing the only hospital with patients. Anxiety arose because virtually all available anti-toxin had been used.

Dr. Henry Griest of the Presbyterian Hospital said the health bureau at Fairbanks, which sent a supply here last Sunday by Joe Crosson, airplane pilot, had advised him it was hesitant about sending more serum by plane because of the expense.

Dr. Griest replied financial considerations were secondary.

HALE ADVANCED $19,000, SAYS HOWARD

Manchester, N. H., March 12 (AP)—Alfred H. Howard, Boston mortgage broker, testified at the trial of Arthur H. Hale today that he had received advancements from Hale of about $19,000. Hale is charged with the misapplication of funds while treasurer of the now-closed Merrimack River Savings Bank.

Howard, called as a defense witness, said he had done considerable business with Hale and the bank. He said that from 1925 on Hale had made advancements by bonds or cashiers' checks and that Hale always wanted interest charges kept to date.

Howard testified it was customary, during times of depression, for those advanced money to keep up interest payments. He said Hale was the only source of the payments that he knew of.

Maniac Fires Barn, Attacks 2, Is Slain

Long Valley, N. J., March 12 (AP)—An unidentified man, apparently insane, set fire to the barn of Gilbert Welsh, attempted to attack Welsh and his wife, interfered with firemen and was killed by a State trooper today.

Two State troopers said he shouted, "I ain't afraid of you," and ran in their direction.

200 Chinese Perish in Ship Blast Fire

Shanghai, March 12 (AP)—More than 200 Chinese perished when the burning Chinese coastal steamer Pachi exploded and sank 60 miles north of the mouth of the Yangtze river last night. A revenue cruiser and native boats picked up 180 of the 400 aboard. The explosion occurred when some of the 100 Chinese soldiers aboard threw cigarette stubs into the cotton cargo.

JOHN F. FLAYS '3 HORSEMEN' AT HEARING

The "three horsemen," once described by former Governor Fuller as the "morning, afternoon and evening mayors" of Boston, "looted the city," during the Nichols administration, John F. Fitzgerald charged before the joint legislative committee on cities and towns today.

Mr. Fitzgerald hurled the charge at a hearing on Senator Joseph Finnegan's bill for party nominations and elections for the office of mayor in the city of Boston.

"The former Governor knew what he was talking about when he told the people of Boston that the three horsemen were out to loot the city," he said. "He described them as the morning, afternoon and evening mayors during the administration of Malcolm Nichols—the most discredited tenure of office in the history of Boston. And the three horsemen did loot the city, as everybody knows.

FAVORS CROWLEY.

"Neither have we forgotten the police scandal wherein a Republican Governor attempted to cover up ex-Police Commissioner Wilson.

"Nor have we forgotten the conduct in office of Arthur K. Reading and Fred Burrell. I don't claim that all the wrong is in the Republican party, but some of it is. We want and should have party responsibility in city offices, and I believe the Legislature should give the people of Boston a chance to vote on the matter.

"I feel the same way about the police department. Supt. Michael H. Crowley should be police commissioner of Boston, and say this despite the fact that I consider Mr. Hultman a friend. He is, however, from outside the city and he incurred the displeasure of many by going outside to pick his secretary."

The reference made to the police department by Fitzgerald was in connection with a bill filed by Senator Twohig of South Boston to place the power of appointment of police commissioner of the city with the mayor.

RAPS "INNES TWINS"

Representatives Richard M. Johnston and George P. Anderson of Boston spoke in opposition to both bills. Anderson denying charges that the mayoralty election in 1925 was "manipulated."

"It was a fair fight with seven candidates in the field and Nichols, the best man won," he said.

"Yes," retorted Twohig, "Nichols won with 64,000 and the other candidates received a total of more than 128,000. That is the sort of thing that this bill can prevent."

Twohig added that the only opposition to the bills came from the "Innes twins, Johnston and Anderson."

"The vote received by Nichols in the 1925 election showed him to be a very poor minority candidate," he said. "The present system of election is ridiculous."

Former Mayor Fitzgerald also favored a two-year term. He said:

"If a mayor proves his worth to the people in two years they will put him back again. If he is bad the people have to stand for it for four long years."

Court Holds Two on Drug Charges

Abe Tapper, alias Sam Lewis, of Wildwood st., Dorchester, and Thomas Gately of Shawmut ave., South End, were held in $3000 each today in federal court charged with selling morphine.

Tapper was charged in one count and Gately in three that will be heard in federal court March 18.

Accused Veteran Loses City Relief

Ernest Willis, 35, of Gates st., South Boston, defendant in the alleged South Boston vice ring, today was stricken from the list of war veterans drawing soldiers' relief from the city.

Soldiers' Relief Commissioner John J. Lydon said he was compelled to take such action on account of the charges against him.

Willis is held in bonds of $4000 in connection with the investigation of stories of grammar school girls

Rabbis Seek Easier Rules to Get Wine

Washington, March 12 (INS)—Claiming that "too strict" regulations of sacramental wine would cause Jewish congregations to buy it from bootleggers, a delegation of New York rabbis today asked Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman to modify the rules pertaining to distribution of wine.

Wheat Surplus Equal to 1930, Says Stone

Washington, March 12 (AP)—Chairman Stone of the farm board estimated today the domestic carryover of wheat on July 1 will be 375,000,000 bushels, the same as last year. The chairman said, however, that this figure was believed too high by George L. Milner, president of the Grain Stabilization Corporation. The visible supply now is 198,000,000 bushels and stocks on farms 180,000,000.

WICKERSHAM SEES SOLACE FOR WETS

report, he stressed, was of little importance and said:

"Apparently a large body of anti-prohibitionists expected the commission to find a way for them to secure liquor with ease and were enraged when we failed to do so.

The commission, he said, is now investigating alleged "rank maladministration" of immigration and deportation laws, the lawless acts of government officials in other fields and prison conditions.

Discussing the lost Massachusetts report, he asserted:

"I understand that some of the Boston papers have felt they had cause for complaint because the commission was unable to send to the Senate the survey of conditions in Massachusetts. There is evidently a misapprehension as to what these surveys were.

"In the commission's report, it is stated:

"Under the direction of the commissioner of prohibition, surveys were made of the conditions as to observance and enforcement of the National Prohibition Act in substantially all of the states. These surveys were put at our disposal.'

41 STATE SURVEYS

"There were in all surveys of 41 states which were so prepared and sent to our commission, in response to a resolution of the U. S. Senate, surveys of 37 states were transmitted to the Senate. Surveys in four states were missing, namely, Massachusetts, South Dakota, Nebraska and California.

"After diligent search the Commission has failed to find these four. We regret that they appear to have been mislaid, but such is the fact and we have no further control over the subject."

Launching into discussion of the Commission's report, Chairman Wickersham said:

"Curiously enough the most vehement criticism and the most abusive articles came almost exclusively from the 'wet' press. I say curiously because I should have thought the 'wets' would have derived more encouragement from the report and the separate statements of the commissioners attached to it than the 'drys.'

DRY COMMENT FRIENDLY

"Yet the comments of the 'dry' press and of 'dry' organizations have been on the whole friendly to the report. They seem to have taken to heart the criticism of the methods adopted by Prohibition advocates in the past and to have realized from the description of existing conditions, the need of rallying their forces and reconsidering plans.

"In the past there was much well-founded complaint of the excessive intolerance of the Prohibitionists. This peculiar characteristic of late appears to have been appropriated by their opponents.

"Apparently a large body of anti-Prohibitionists expected the commissioners to find a way for them to secure liquor with ease and were enraged when we failed to do so.

"Much has been made in public discussion of the differences between the conclusions formulated by the commission itself in the report, which was signed by ten of its members, and the opinions expressed by individual commissioners in their separate statements.

"I think a careful study of all these documents will satisfy any impartial mind that these differences are mainly confined to the remedies suggested for the ills recognized in the report.

EVILS RECOGNIZED.

"The report frankly recognizes the evils which have developed in the course of ten years of the administration of the National Prohibition Act, but nevertheless points out that the great achievement of the act has been abolition of the legalized saloon.

"The report discussed quite frankly the obstacles in the way of better enforcement, and emphasizes the fact that every plan of control must start from the fundamental fact that the business of producing and distributing alcohol transcends state laws.

"Under any regime there will always be need of federal action to protect the systems of the states, whether these state systems are prohibition, state conduct of the business, state control or state regulation,' the report says.

"Moreover, in order to make that protection effective, there will probably always be need of a strong federal enforcing organization. Liquor control is more imperative than ever. If it is to be effective, the federal government must be authorized to do a large part in the program and to do it efficiently.

"Of course, it is recognized that active co-operation by the state government always will be required for effective control.'

DIFFER ON ENFORCEMENT

"The members of the commission differed on the question of whether or not there was any reasonable probability that the prohibition law could be reasonably enforced with improved organization and larger appropriations, and whether or not it was too late for development of a more favorable attitude of the public mind toward prohibition.

"A number of the members of the Commission concluded that the effort would be futile; a smaller number of them were unwilling to give up the experiment without a further trial."

Wickersham explained that the former, recognizing that the process of amendment would require time, united with the others in the recommendations for the improvement of the enforcement agencies for the present.

"All the members signing the report agreed that if the 18th Amendment were revised, it should be made to give Congress power to regulate or prohibit manufacture, traffic in or transportation of intoxicating liquors," he continued.

FEARS SALOON RETURN

"The question of alternatives to the existing order gave members of the Commission great concern.

"Some of us, of whom I am one, feared that any of the modifications proposed would inevitably lead to the restoration of the licensed saloon, with all the evils of this institution in the past, and therefore were unwilling at this time to abandon all further efforts to bring about a general observance of the Eighteenth Amendment."

Meeting criticism of the cost of the prohibition survey, he said the total expenditure was not more than $100,000.

GREETED BY FILENE

The commission, he pointed out, is still carrying on its work in other fields, including a study of the lawless acts of government officials, "which rank maladministration with regard to immigration and deportation of aliens"; juvenile delinquency; prisons, both state and federal; and the police.

Arriving at the Back Bay station at 7:15 this morning, Chairman Wickersham went to the home of Stephen Hurlburt at 12 Brimmer st., where he was met by Edward A. Filene, the Boston merchant.

HARBOR, RIVER WORK ALLOTED

Washington, March 12 (AP)—Allotment of more than $75,000,000 for river and harbor work in all parts of the country was announced today by the War Department.

The allotments were made up of $50,605,111.97 from the $60,000,000 appropriated for rivers and harbors work for the present fiscal year. The remainder will close the department's emergency appropriation fund of $22,500,000.

Among the allotments were:

Boston harbor, Mass., $23,500; Cape Cod Canal, Mass., $118,000; examinations, surveys and contingencies (general): Boston district, $60,700; Harbor of Refuge, Block Island, R. I., $7000; Connecticut river below Hartford, Ct., $19,500; Stamford harbor, Ct., $54,500; Greenwich harbor, Ct., $18,000; examinations, surveys and contingencies (general): Providence district, $51,000; Lynn harbor, Mass., $5000; New Bedford and Fairhaven harbor, Mass., $132,000; New Haven harbor, Ct., $57,000; Bridgeport harbor, Ct., $62,000; Waterways of Lake Champlain, N. Y., and Vt., $500.

Oil Men Willing to Limit Imports

Washington, March 12 (AP)—Secretary Wilbur today announced all of the oil companies that have been approached in negotiations to limit imports have said they were willing to co-operate.

The negotiations, conducted by Secretary Lamont under instructions from President Hoover, included the Gulf Oil Co., Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, Standard of Indiana and others.

Wilbur said the companies said it would require some time for each company to determine how much it could do.

Australia May Junk Its $66,000,000 Dream City

Canberra, March 12 (AP)—Abandonment of Canberra, Australia's federal capital dream city, which cost $66,000,000, is being urged by many leaders in public life and business men.

Described by some politicians as "the nation's symbol of unity," and by others as "a running ulcer of finance," it would be returned to the sheep which once grazed on its broad acres if the widespread movement prevails. It is isolated and its maintenance is costly.

Five hotels, costing over $3,000,000, were built, but for two years three of them have been closed.

$50,000 'ALKY' PLANT BONFIRE

Springfield, March 12—One of the biggest and certainly the most unusual bonfire ever touched off here is due to blaze up late today when the torch is applied to equipment and product of a huge alcohol distilling plant raided Tuesday night.

The plant, on the eastern outskirts of the city, valued with contents at $50,000, will be destroyed by court order issued today instead of being broken up and resold in storage.

The order was issued by U. S. Judge James Lowell, now sitting here, on petition of enforcement officers, who pleaded the size of the plant and the labor and cost of transporting it to this city for safekeeping.

WALKER GUILTY IF 'LAUGHING' IS 'CRIME'

Dallas, Tex., March 12 (AP)—Mayor James J. Walker of New York said today, "If laughing is a crime, then I am a criminal and I shall keep on being one."

His comment was on a petition of the New York Society for the Prevention of Crime sent to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and the Legislature, in which the dapper mayor's "flippant attitude" and "wisecracking" were criticized.

"Ah, 'without impugning the mayor's personal integrity,'" he said, reading an Associated Press dispatch describing the petition.

"Take it, I do not care to read further," he said, handing back the dispatch after he had come to the clause that stated the mayor's personal integrity was not impugned.

"If I talked about doings now evidently transpiring in New York they would charge me with trying to obstruct the proposed investigation; on the other hand because I refuse to discuss them they'll probably say I'm 'reckless and flippant,'" he added.

"After 25 years public service they admit they cannot impugn my integrity; that's great stuff," he beamed. "They only thing they object to is my flippant attitude and wise-cracking. Yes, I am a laugher. We need more laughers."

SORROW PIERCES MOTHER'S HEART

Scene taken in courthouse at Valparaiso, Ind., when Virgil Kirkland, Gary high school athlete, was convicted in murder of Areline Draves and sentenced to life imprisonment. Mrs. Myrtle Kirkland, the boy's mother, shown here, with anguish stamped deep in her face, sprang to her feet as she heard judge pronounce sentence, crying, "My boy, my boy, save my boy," then slumped in a dead faint. SHORTER WORK DAY URGED TO PROGRESSIVES

Washington, March 12 —Shorter working hours and a wider distribution of wealth were suggested today to the Progressive conference for solution of unemployment and industrial problems.

Robert P. Scripps, president of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, put the two-point proposal into plain words after similar suggestions had been voiced by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor.

Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, whom the veteran Independent, Norris of Nebraska, said he looked upon to lead in the independent movement after he had passed on, presented the problems to the conference.

MANY R. R. MEN IDLE

D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, said one third of his organization was "walking the streets."

The five day week was proposed by Green, Robertson proposed, in addition, a six hour day. Scripps said "shorter working hours than we have ever dreamed of" would be necessary.

He said when increased per capita production "on the farm or in the shop means not plenty, but unemployment for millions of intelligent and willing workers, then something is decidedly wrong with the system which permits this condition."

TARIFF AN ISSUE

Revival of the tariff warfare in Congress may emerge from the conference, coupled with demands of independent oil and some agriculture interests for action.

The Hawley-Smoot tariff law of 1930 was branded by speakers as one of the contributing factors to the business decline and a bar to complete recovery

2 Persons Injured in Triple Crash

Marlboro, March 12—Two persons were injured early today on the Boston road when an auto operated by Frank L. Adams Jr., 25, of Lanesboro rd., Worcester, struck the rear of a truck operated by William Ross, of Washington st., Somerville.

Miss Lyons, owner of a local dance hall, driving in the same direction, crashed into the Adams car. She was treated by a local physician.

Soviet Timber Cargo Going to Providence

Moscow, March 13 (AP)—The Finnish steamer Aavarsoie, which sailed from Leningrad March 6 carrying timber to the United States, will dock at Providence, R. I., instead of New York.

The cargo is consigned to the Amtorg Trading Corporation, which handles Soviet commerce in the United States.

Judge O'Connell's Estate $38,500

Worcester, March 12 (AP)—Judge Philip J. O'Connell of the Superior Court left the personal property in his former law office to his former partner, John P. Halnon and the residue of his estate to his widow, Catherine T. O'Connell, under his will filed today in Probate Court.

The estate is valued at $38,500.

SULLIVAN ENDS HIS TESTIMONY

retts in 1925 at a bowling party at Uphams Corner, having been introduced to them by Mrs. Stella Fraser. The dinner party was held the following summer, she thought, on a Sunday.

She said Cox told her the Garretts were going and that the Garretts had invited them to dinner. They drove to the Ritz and dined. She said she drunk only wines and on this occasion confined herself to the champagne. She had no whiskey or creme de menthe.

Under cross-examination by Herbert F. Callahan, Garrett's lawyer, she remembered having told Garrett one place she thought should be raided. Later she saw in the newspapers that it was raided.

SAW DOYLE THREE TIMES

Cross-examination by Daniel J. Gallagher, counsel for the women defendants, brought out that Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle had visited her three times since the first trial and that she at first denied going to the Ritz with the Garretts "because she didn't want to be in on it," but told him the truth on the second visit.

The party was in a private room at the Ritz, she said, and she didn't know how long it lasted.

Once she and Cox visited a farm in Hingham and saw the Garretts and on another occasion they met them in the Minerva Cafe, she said.

Cox followed her to the stand. He said he had known the Garretts about eight years. The Ritz dinner, he thought, was some time in 1924, 1925 or 1926.

"Liquor and champagne, he said, were served—I Trust, they said it was champagne; I'm not used to it."

He visited the Garretts in Alpha rd., Dorchester, and at their Hingham farm where, he said, he observed some "nice buildings and nice cows" and some horses.

Later he met Garrett at the Hotel Minerva where Cox lives, and when Doyle asked him to relate what conversation had taken place he said he asked the former rider how the cows were and Garrett said he didn't have them any more.

The Ritz books went into the records shortly before the morning recess. Doyle asked Sullivan if they were the books "supposed to be lost" and Sullivan said they were.

DOYLE ASKS QUESTION.

His cross-examination by Gallagher ended with questions as to his memory of having testified at the Cockinos trial that he never gave Garrett any money. Sullivan said he remembered so testifying, and Gallagher sat down. Doyle jumped up with a question in redirect:

"Why did you testify in that manner in the Cockinos case?"

"I met Mr. Callahan and he asked me if I was going to testify against policemen, and told me I had better not or I would go to State Prison," was the answer.

Callahan asked when the advice was given and Sullivan said on the morning of the trial of Cockinos.

The former Hotel Ritz proprietor admitted there were no policemen on trial in that case.

There was a small crowd of spectators when trial resumed before Judge Elias Bishop and a jury in Suffolk Superior Court.

During his cross-examination Sullivan said he did not intentionally suppress any facts at the Warner hearing. He could not remember, he said, whether it was 1929 or 1930 when he was in the Danvers state hospital. Once, he said, he took poison in mistake for medicine.

Sullivan said that every time he went before the Boston licensing board, following complaint about the sale of liquor at the Hotel Ritz, Garrett told the board he was satisfied Sullivan knew nothing about the sale of liquor there.

He could not recall that Garrett testified but once before the board, he said.

"hula hula," says: "Business is definitely on the upgrade, if the people have the power to make the grade."

Mr. Ochs, thoughtful, says the country was going too fast and "naturally ran out of breath."

Many ran out of other things, such as jobs, ready cash and "collateral."

A Chicago man went to all the banks and reported that there was no shortage of cash, in the country, but "only a shortage of collateral." He had the shortage.

CAKES AND PIES HAVE IMPORTANT DIET VALUE

Their Flavorful Goodness Makes a Meal Complete

America has made its pastry popular the world over. And of all desserts, few can be made in more pleasing variety than pies and cakes.

Every normal person should have pastry frequently, because it helps balance the diet. A piece of fruit pie, or a slice of light-textured cake, is an ideal ending to a meal composed of meat, and vegetables, both leafy and starchy.

If you don't make your own pies and cakes, the ingredients and manufacturing methods employed by modern bakers, great and small, insure the highest quality in these popular American desserts. Their freshness can be depended upon and their price is within reach of all.

A nationally known nutritional authority recommends a generous vegetable salad followed by a piece of pie, cake or any similar dessert for those dieting, in order to reduce weight. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.

KONJOLA AIDS MAN AND WIFE

Cambridge Resident, 80, Tells What Famous Medicine Did For His Family

Age is no bar to the merits of Konjola, America's household medicine. Men and women of all ages and from all walks of life have come to depend upon this great compound for relief from ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis, and nervousness. The record made by this famous household remedy might often challenge belief were the actual facts not known and verified. Read the experience of Mr. Robert Evans, aged 80, 589 Main street, Cambridge, near Boston. Both Mr. Evans and his wife have known the power of Konjola in stubborn cases. The Konjola Man at Epstein's Scollay Square, Epstein Drug Company, Boston, is waiting to explain this famous medicine to you. See him today. Here is the statement of Mr. Evans:

"My wife and I are both taking Konjola with equally good results. My wife had rheumatism in her knee so badly that that member was swollen to twice its normal size. She was very nervous and did not sleep at night. She has taken four bottles of Konjola and the swelling and pain have left her knee, her nerves are calmer and she sleeps better than in a long time. I suffered from indigestion and bloated badly after meals. I was constipated and forced to take cathartics continually. This is all over since I took Konjola. I never thought I would endorse a medicine but since we have received the benefit we have, I feel it to be my duty."

Konjola is just that kind of a medicine. It is free from alcohol or harmful drugs and yet it continues to bring relief to thousands. Demand Konjola and get it; don't be switched to a substitute.

The Konjola Man is at Epstein's Scollay Square (Epstein Drug Company), Boston, where he is meeting the public daily. Konjola is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

POLITICS

Notes and Gossip About People You Know

DONOVAN FOR CONGRESS

While he has made no formal announcement of his plans, it is rumored about City Hall that City Councilor Timothy J. Donovan of East Boston will seek a seat in Congress from that district.

POWER IN RACE

City Councilor Lee F. Power of Ward 10, Roxbury, last night announced he had definitely decided to seek re-election next fall.

KOUPCHIK IS CONSTABLE

Sammy Koupchik of Anderson st., West End, one of Mayor Curley's most loyal supporters, has assumed his new duties as constable-investigator for the city law department.

FLAY HAVOC WITH DIGNITY

Senator Donald W. Nicholson of Wareham says that if his two children expect to visit the State House again in the near future they are doomed to disappointment. Malcolm, eight, and Mary six, burst into the committee room in which their father was sitting with a vociferous "Hi," to the amusement of the rest of the committee. It was only after the senator had chased them round the room and under one of the tables that he was able to get his hands on them and get them out of the room.

WHY HE FOUGHT CURLEY

A story is told of a candidate for a minor political office in this city who bitterly assailed Mayor Curley on many occasions during his campaign. He was elected and soon afterward met the mayor for the first time.

"I was amused by some of the childish things you said about me," the mayor told him.

"Well, Mr. Mayor," he replied, "I am glad that you saw the humor of it. The situation was that nobody knew me; everybody knew you; and so, like the small boy in the story, in order to attract attention to myself I threw stones at the shining light."

HOODOO'S NOTHING TO BILL

Friday the 13th holds no terrors for the members of the Mullen family. Tomorrow William F. Mullen Jr., son of "Bill" Mullen, assistant secretary to Mayor Curley, observes his second birthday. A feature of the occasion will be a birthday party at the Mullen residence, 24 Mora st., Dorchester, which will be attended by 33 little guests.

HE'S GOT A WICKED MOVE

"Tom" O'Leary of the public works department claims to be the checker champion of City Hall. The men of the auditor's office dispute his claim and are now attempting to bring about a match between "Tom" and "Charlie" McCarthy of their office.

PHIPS' PORTRAIT UP

Governor Ely and the council are viewing, preliminary to accepting a copy of a portrait of Spencer Phips, who was governor under the Province of Massachusetts Bay Charter, from 1732 to 1753. Phips was a nephew of Sir William Phips, governor from 1692 to 1694. Sir William's portrait was recently accepted by the state.

CURLEY COURT TO MEET

The first meeting of Ensonia Court, M. C. O. F., under its new designation, James M. Curley, Jr., Court, will be held at the Hotel Statler next Monday evening. After a brief business meeting a social and dance will be held. It is expected that more than 600 persons, the majority of them city employes, will be in attendance.

The court was organized by the late James M. Curley, Jr., and he was its first chief ranger. Following his death, the members of the organization voted to change the name of the court as a tribute to its departed founder.

ANOTHER COLONIAL GOV.

A copy of a portrait of Richard Bellingham, one of the Colonial governors, which has been given to the state by Sir Evelyn Wrench of London, is due to arrive at the State House shortly. The presentation will be made by Edward F. Gray, British consulate-general in Boston. The Colonial period extended from 1630 to 1688 and the state has portraits of all the governors with the exceptions of Matthew Craddock, Thomas Dudley and John Haynes. As far as known, no portraits of these are in existence.

Newport, R. I., March 12 (AP)—The will of Mrs. May Brady Harriman, New York and Newport society leader, filed for probate here, revealed public bequests totalling $170,000. The estate is estimated at $750,000. Katherine H. Pratt, a niece, is left income for life on $150,000. A sister, Katherine M. Harris, is willed income on $200,000 Servants were left $2000.

Jail Delivery Plot in Cuba Is Foiled

Havana, March 12 (AP)—Army trucks rolled up to the Principe Fortress just before dawn today and every political prisoner in the stronghold was taken out secretly, loaded into a ship and moved to the prison on the Isle of Pines.

The action was taken, it was said, after discovery of a plot for a jail delivery by the political prisoners.

Rail Worker Killed

Newport, Me., March 12 (AP)—William Lawrence, of Etna, railroad employe, was killed today by the locomotive of a freight train en route from Bangor to Waterville, on the Maine Central Railroad.

SECRECY IN ALL RENO DIVORCES

Carson City, Nev., March 12 (INS)—Divorce seekers are cheered by reports that the new "six weeks" law will be on the statute books by May 1.

Interest was centering today on an amendment which would bar the press and public from divorce hearings, seal all papers in divorce cases and compel judges to hold all divorce proceedings behind closed doors.

Lawyers who have profited in divorce cases contended that such secrecy would attract many divorcees to Reno.

Another bill was said to be planned by lawyers prohibiting the taking or publication of pictures in divorce cases. This measure would forbid the writing, telephoning and telegraphing of any details of a divorce action without consent of the interested parties.

Chaplin Catches Cold

Berlin, March 12 (AP)—Among the many who contracted sore throats or colds in the head during last night's unseasonable weather was Charlie Chaplin. After a party he insisted on taking a walk in the snow.

Thief Tries to Steal House, Almost Succeeds

North Eastham, March 12—An ingenious thief, with an exaggerated confidence in his ability, attempted to steal a two-story summer cottage located on the ocean front.

The attempted larceny was discovered when a neighbor heard the sound of timbers falling at the unoccupied cottage owned by Anna Kelly, of Dorchester.

Corp. William Armstrong of the Orleans State police barracks was notified and when he arrived at the Kelly house found that one entire side of the house and several partitions had been removed.

Work on Hoover Dam Is Started at Last

Las Vegas, Nev., March 12 (AP)—The taming of the mighty Colorado river got under way today. Actual work started on Hoover dam, a monumental engineering effort, flung placed in a wild section that has been a land of romance since the 16th century.

The turbulent stream, which draws its volume from seven states before emptying into the Gulf of California, has been the object of study by government engineers for more than 40 years.

GANDHI STARTS NEW MARCH FOR SALT

Ahmadabad, India, March 12 (AP)—Today, first anniversary of the start of his historic march to the sea in beginning of the civil disobedience campaign, Mahatma Gandhi left here to retrace his route and once more make salt.

The new venture will test the truce he arranged last week with Viceroy Lord Irwin. One of the terms was that peasants in the salt district would be allowed to make salt for their own use and for sale within their own towns, although this is a breach of the letter of the law.

It was not regarded as likely that the British would rearrest Gandhi with the end of the formal truce ending the civil disobedience campaign scarcely dry, but all India watched Gandhi's move. The Nationalists regard salt making as a sacred right.

British Parliament Begins Debate on India

London, March 12 (AP)—Parliament met today for the first Indian debate since the Gandhi-Irwin truce. The chief speakers of all parties were down for addresses.

It was expected that Stanley Baldwin, Conservative, would use the occasion to clarify his own and his party's position on the projected second round table conference.

Two Tailors Robbed of Pants Sit Down and Make 'Em

Chicago, March 12 (AP)—Two men walked into the tailor shop of Louis Hirsch, drew pistols, herded Edward W. Pence, the manager, and his assistant, Peter Zimmerman, into a rear room, took their money and their trousers and walked away.

It was late and Pence and Zimmerman wanted to go home, but there were no ready-made pants available for them in the shop.

Then they solved the problem by sitting down and making two pairs, ending this task about midnight.

ITALY'S DEFICIT $23,000,000

Rome, March 12 (AP)—A deficit of 424,169,568 lire (approximately $23,000,000) is foreseen in the 1931-32 budget for all government branches to be presented in the Chamber of Deputies by Antonio Mosconi, finance minister.

Receipts are estimated at 18,809,516,060 and disbursements at 19,325,685,629 lire. The lire is worth a little more than five cents.

Mosconi said the budget was influenced by the world economic depression.

BIG INCREASE IN AUTO OUTPUT

New York, March 12 (AP)—February production of automobiles increased 29 per cent to 230,364 units compared with 178,399 units in January, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce reported.

Production for the first two months of 1931 amounted to 408,763 units, compared with 629,561 for the corresponding period of last year.

The increase in February over January was regarded as encouraging. Indications of an increase in output of 50 per cent in March were seen. Dealer organizations in 10 key cities reported that retail sales are keeping step with the increased production.

Karolyi Sues U. S. for Seized Goods

Washington, March 12 (AP)—Count Michael Karolyi, formerly of Hungary, hopes to regain $16,314 because he is a "man without a country." An attorney for the nobleman, who now lives in Paris and has made several efforts to enter the United States, has begun suit here against the alien property custodian for property seized in 1917.

The contention is that Karolyi is not a "subject of any country or nation," hence his property can not be held.

Widow Is Held in Probe of Man's Death

Hopkinsville, Ky., March 12—Blame for the mysterious death here January 27 of a county patrolman, Edwin Dycus, 26, was laid by the grand jury upon his young widow, who was seriously wounded Monday, coincident with the death of an aged suitor.

6 FINED IN RUM CARGO SEIZURE

Middletown, Ct., March 12 (INS)—The Bridgeport boat "Nightingale," captured on January 5 when it poked through the darkness to a wharf at Saybrook, had today become an expensive matter to the men involved in its affairs.

Four members of the crew must pay fines of $500 each before they are released from a term of two months each in the county jail, two others paid $200 fines for attempted bribery, and a third forfeited a bond of $10,000.

The "Nightingale" is held awaiting action by the United States District Court. A cargo of liquor valued at $100,000 was seized on the craft.

Legislator Dying in Hotel Shooting

Little Rock, Ark., March 12—W. H. McCabe, representative in the Arkansas Legislature, was seriously wounded by a bullet which passed through the door of his hotel today. H. G. Lansdale, an Atlanta (Ga.) salesman, was taken into custody.

Officers learned that the salesman had been creating a disturbance.

The hotel clerk received complaints about noises from both McCabe's and Lansdale's rooms, including one from Lansdale, who was reported to have told the clerk: "If you don't stop him, I will."

Wounded, Shoots 2 Jailbirds in a Duel

New York, March 12 (AP)—A policeman engaged in a pistol duel with an escaped convict and an ex-convict early today. All three ended up in the hospital with critical wounds.

When Patrolman James J. Flanagan halted two men one of them replied with bullets and they fled. Flanagan winged both of them and fellow police took up the chase. They were captured shortly after.

Lady Seeks Cowboy to Herd Her Turkeys

Fargo, N. D., March 12 (AP)—For a long time it has been known that diversification of crops and other factors were forcing the cowboy to make his last stand in the bad lands, but no one ever thought he would be called on to fill a request like the one a woman made in a want ad in a North Dakota paper. The ad read:

"Wanted—a good cowboy to herd turkeys."

First Girl Scout Sends Greetings

Savannah, Ga., March 12 (AP)—Mrs. Sarah C. Lawrence, first Girl Scout in the United States, today sent greetings to all the Girl Scouts of the county as they celebrated the 19th anniversary of the founding of their organization.

The Girl Scout movement was launched here on March 12, 1912, by an aunt of Mrs. Lawrence, and the latter registered as the first member of the first troop.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Buddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 50 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

2 COAST GUARD BOATS GROUND IN HARBOR

Two coast guard patrol boats of the East Boston base were badly damaged today when one grounded on Deer Island and the other met a similar fate as it went to aid.

CG-171, outward bound, was the first to ground, crashing up on the rocks on the morning tide in the darkness.

Her call for aid brought the CG-190 to the scene and, in maneuvering, she too became fast on the rocks.

The latter, in command of Boatswain's Mate Lester Poole, succeeded in moving her sister boat somewhat, but the 171 rocked over a rock-covered drain from Deer Island and only moved from a stern down position to one of bow down.

Further efforts of the 190 to move the 171 from that position set the would-be rescuer in the same position taken at first by the 171.

The drain, covered with rocks for protection, was under about five feet of water at high tide. Coast guard officials blamed the strong tide and high wind for the predicament of the two craft.

Another patrol boat, the CG-278, was dispatched from the East Boston base for an effort to pull the boats off before the tide receded, but her efforts were in vain. She was joined by the cutter Ossipee but little hope was seen for the floating of the two boats before the night high tide at 6:16.

Triplets Named After Amos, Andy, Madam

Jackson, Ky., March 12 (AP)—Radio has its devotees even in the heart of the Kentucky mountains. When triplets were born to Mr. and Mrs. Levi Deaton, at Wick, Breathitt county, two boys and a girl, they were named Amos, Andy and Madame Queen, after the principals in the recent fame-1 radio breach of promise suit.

124 ATTACKS ON AMERICANS IN CHINA

Shanghai, March 12 (AP)—Seven gunboats, comprising the United States Yangtze river patrol, have been the targets of not less than 27 bandit attacks since last July, American Naval authorities here revealed today.

In the same period armed American guards aboard commercial vessels were attacked 87 times.

Not once did the roving bands of river shore brigands, with their ancient, rusty, muzzle loading cannon, emerge victorious.

Scores of bandits fell dead before the fire of machine gun and three inch rifles manned by American bluejackets.

The American patrol did not escape without casualties. Samuel Elkins of Brooklyn, N. Y., seaman of the gunboat Guam, was killed la July 5.

On July 30, near Chantch, in the Siang river, bandits fired upon the gunboat Palos. Five sailors were wounded.

CROWLEY HITS RAIL MERGERS

A warning of New York objections to consolidation of New England railroads was sounded today at the State House by Patrick Crowley, president of the New York Central railroad.

Crowley appeared before the legislative committee on commercial transportation in its investigation of alleged heavy acquisition of New England railroad stock by the Pennsylvania railroad and one of its holding companies.

"Any attempt to cry up our business here through consolidation will mean that we will take steps to protect ourselves, but I doubt any such attempt will be made," Crowley said.

He was questioned on the possibility of absorption of the Boston & Albany Railroad, with which the New York Central has many connecting lines.

"The Boston & Albany is leased in many places by the New York Central," he said, "but always has been run as a separate railroad and will continue, I think, in that way."

Asked if he viewed with any alarm the attempts of the Van Sweringen interests to enter New England, Crowley replied in the negative.

"We have contact now with the Van Sweringen interests and our relations are very pleasant," he said.

EMPLOYMENT UP, SAYS DOAK

Washington, March 12 (AP)—Secretary Doak today reported there had been a general increase in the volume of industrial employment during February, basing his announcement on department statistics.

He said the increase constituted "the first satisfactory indication of a general upward trend since the stock market collapsed in October, 1929."

He estimated the total number of persons employed in industry had increased 1.4 per cent in February over January, and that payrolls last month were 7.5 per cent greater than in the preceding month.

New Campaign on Bootlegs Planned

Washington, March 12 (AP)—Development of a new and more strenuous "plan of campaign" against dry law violators, built around the addition of 500 new dry agents, was made known today by Prohibition Director Woodcock.

The purchase of $50,000 worth of automobiles for use by the dry forces also was announced. Bids will be sent out shortly in order that they may be delivered before July 1.

Belgium to Cut Wages

Antwerp, Belgium, March 12 (AP)—Introduction of a bill reducing civil employes' salaries and pensions by 6 per cent commencing April 17 was decided upon by the government today.

High Cost of Divorce Keeping Chicago Couples Set

Chicago, March 12 (AP)—Divorce court attaches are singing the "Hard Time Blues."

M. S. Szymczak, clerk of the Superior Court, and Thomas O. Wallace, clerk of the Circuit Court, disclosed that in the five months ending February 28 the number of suits filed in the two courts was 4487, or six per cent less than the 4787 for the same period a year ago.

MYSTERY CAR TO DEFEND TITLE

London, March 12 (INS)—If Malcolm Campbell's speed record of 248.08 land speed record is wrested from Britain, an attempt will be made to regain it with a car to be called to the Segrave Special, designed for a speed of 300 M. P. H.

Segrave, shortly before his death, made secret plans, and has completed the drawings, for a 5000 H. P. car designed for a speed of 300 m. p. h.

Long Hair Coming Back, Wigs Ready for Bobbed Heads

New York, March 12 (US)—News of the return of long hair was wig-wagged to a waiting world of women by observers at the International Beauty Shop Owners' convention and exhibition.

Wigs will be furnished promptly to any of America's 5,000,000 bobbed heads who desire an immediate transformation. It was said by delegates to the convention in the Hotel Pennsylvania.

TREATY CHANGE ASKED BY U. S.

London, March 12 (INS)—At the suggestion of the United States government, the Anglo-France-Italian naval accord probably will be subjected to drastic changes before being whipped into treaty shape, International News Service today learned from an authoritative source.

The suggestion was received in the form of a communication from Secretary of State Stimson

YALE COUNCIL IN COURT ROLE

New Haven, March 12 (AP)—The Yale Student Council, whose functions heretofore have been advisory and intermediary, has definitely set itself up also as a court of appeals for undergraduates.

It will act in this capacity when students who have been the subject of discipline from the faculty feel that they have not had a fair warning preliminary to punishment for misdeeds.

Society Folk in Milne Comedy

The Footlight Club Give "To Have the Honor" in Jamaica Plain

THE FOOTLIGHT CLUB gave its first performance last evening of "To Have the Honor," A. A. Milne's comedy, at Eliot Hall, Jamaica Plain. The cast included Mrs Benjamin Brewster, Miss Peggy Bent, Mrs. Steven R. Fritchman, Mrs. Alexander Grant, Miss Rosamond Newton and Mrs. Stearns Poor; also, William Cowen, Charles Terry Collens, Henry M. Goodrich and Archie Tisdale.

MISS ELIZABETH JOHNSON was head usher, assisted by Miss Nancy Johnson, Mrs. Richard S. Paige and Mrs. Stephan Paine. Coffee was served between the acts and last evening the pourers were Mrs. Charles M. Baker, Mrs. William B. Coffin, Mrs. Arthur W. May and Mrs. Robert W. Myers. The play will continue through Saturday night and various groups of ushers and pourers will have charge each evening. The ushers this evening will be Miss Dorothy May, Miss Barbara Spring, Mrs. F. Murray Forbes, Jr. and Miss Deborah Hall. On Friday patrons will be seated by Miss Delinda I. Dewson, Miss Sarah G. Bradlee, Miss Susan B. Bradlee and Miss Kathleen Chase.

MISS ADA F. DEWSON WILL head the usher squad for Saturday night's performance, with Mis. Ann Boos, Miss Mimi Boos and Miss Adelaide Rice. Thursday evening the coffee pourers are Mrs. Rockwell A. Coffee, Mrs. Henry F. Colwell, Mrs. R. W. Converse and Mrs. Graydon Stetson. Mrs. William L. Barnard, Mrs. Stevens B. Davol, Mrs. George A. Furness and Mrs. Arthur P. Nazro will serve on Friday evening, and the last performance will have Mrs. Karl Andrews, Mrs. Arthur N. Broughton, Mrs. Elbert B. Duncan and Mrs. Arthur W. Rice to preside over the coffee tables.

USHERS AT SMART SOCIETY FUNCTIONS

MISS BARBARA SPRING, who will be one of the ushers tonight when the Footlight Club will give its second performance of Milne's comedy, "To Have the Honor," in Eliot Hall, Jamaica Plain. At the right is Mrs. Charles Terry Collens, the former Eleanor Perkins, who will be one of the ushers tonight for the Judge Baker Foundation dinner in the Copley-Plaza Hotel. Notables from all sections of New England will have a part in this dinner. The first production of "To Have the Honor" was given last night.

Ushers Named for Baker Foundation Dinner This Evening

THE USHERS FOR THE Judge Baker Foundation dinner which is being held at the Copley-Plaza Hotel this evening are to be Miss Jane Meserve, Miss Sarah G. Bradlee, Miss Susan B. Bradlee, Mrs. Charles Terry Collens, Miss Clara B. Dupuy, Mrs. Francis Lee Higginson, Jr., Miss Peggy Hinckley, Miss Lorraine Lesser, Miss Charlotte C. Moseley, Miss Helen Moseley, Miss Betty Soule and Miss Barbara Wendell.

THE SUB-DEBUTANTES will have a costume ball given in their honor on Friday evening, March 27, at Eliot Hall, Jamaica Plain. Among the patronesses are Mrs. F. S Moseley, Mrs. Arthur Weed and Mrs. William Endicott, Dexter

MRS. ARTHUR WEED OF Milton, one of the patronesses of the Eliot Hall dances, is giving the ushers' dinner on Friday night, March 20, before the last of the series of these young people's parties.

TOMORROW EVENING will be the occasion of the last Friday evening dancing class for sub-debutantes at the Hotel Somerset and will be a merry party as a number of the young set will be home from schools for the Easter vacation. The dance is to start an hour later than usual in time to allow for dinner parties preceding the dance. Mrs. John S. Lawrence of 59 Commonwealth ave. is in charge.

MRS SAMUEL ELIOT OF Boston is passing a few days at the St Regis Hotel in New York. Mr. and Mrs. Norman B. Smith of Brookline are also at this hotel.

Mrs. J. Huntington to Join Staff of Banking Concern

ONE OF SOCIETY'S MOST attractive matrons has decided to try her talents in the hard, cold business world, we hear. Mrs. "Jimmie" Huntington (Sally Pierce), of Fisher Hill, Brookline, wife of the noted obstetrician and sister of Mrs. Thomas Barbour, will soon join, if she has not already, a banking house on State st. And speaking of attractive women in business, Mrs. Harford Powell is a snappy young matron who lives at 101 Chestnut st. and keeps a little shop in which one can find bits of old world embroideries, furniture and china. Her husband, Harford Powell, is also an interesting personality, being author, editor and a member of Boston's most coveted club, the "Tavern." The Powells frequently drop their various avocations and skip to Europe to occupy a castle in Ireland or a whirl on the Riviera.

SEVERAL THEATER parties are being planned in Weston for the benefit movie to be given in the town hall, Saturday night, among them one by Mrs. Richard Fisher, Mrs. Arthur H. Morse, Mrs. Chandler Robbins and Mrs. Joseph Seabury. This movie is for the benefit of the M. S. P. C. C. The Weston committee sponsoring this entertainment is composed of Mesdames Thomas H. Bassett, Raymond Bidwell, Thomas D. Cabot, Richard T. Fisher, Edward G. Green, Jr., Alfred R. Pratt, Roland Rand, Russell Potter, Jr., Joseph Seabury and the Misses Mary Sheehan and Anne Dickson, from whom tickets may be obtained.

Optometrists Pick Dr. Doane President

Other officers elected are Dr. Hugh Cunningham of Providence, second vice-president; Dr. F. W. Martin of Nashua, N. H., and Dr. Kenneth F. Armstrong of Providence, representatives. Re-elected officers are Dr. George S. Houghton of Boston, president emeritus; Dr. James S. Shaw of Franklin, N. H., first vice-president; Dr. Curtis D. Wells of Boston, secretary-treasurer; Dr. Arthur L. Corriveau of Biddeford, Me.; Dr. L. P. Folsom of South Royalton, Vt.; Dr. Joseph H. O'Neil of Waltham, and Dr. E. R. Crofut of Danbury, Ct., representatives.

B. C. Seniors Pick Class Day Leaders

Four important selections for the class day exercises at Boston College were announced at the Heights.

R. Felix Doherty of Brighton was named class poet. Doherty is editor-in-chief of the Stylus. John P. Rattigan of Hyde Park was chosen class prophet, while Russell Williams, who was voted the most genial member of the graduating class, received the office of historian.

Winter Still Holds Its Grip on Europe

London, March 12 (AP)—Winter still held most of Europe in an unrelenting grip today.

Germany, France, Austria, Switzerland, Scandinavia, Holland and the British Isles suffered from the bitter weather and storms which have continued for a week. The Zuyder Zee, for the first time in several years, was frozen over and ferry service was suspended. Conditions in Great Britain were less severe than yesterday.

Chinese Students Give Entertainment

Chinese students and children surprised their American neighbors last night by the charm and color of the entertainment they gave at the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts in observance of "Chinese Night."

About 75 Chinese boys and girls participated in the program, which consisted of native Chinese songs and dances and songs and tributes to Washington and Lincoln in English.

Sophie Gay Will Wed Soon

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER
Universal Service Society Editor

New York, March 12—Bronson Winthrop Griscom, a grandson of that impressive "Great Lady," the dowager Mrs. Adrian Iselin, has decided to commit matrimony.

And the engagement, to be formally announced today, of Young Griscom and Sophie M. Gay will be of interest to a wide circle of fashionables in this city, Philadelphia and Boston.

Sophie, who can truthfully be classed as one of the most individual young women in the junior ranks, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Otis Gay of 17 E. 72d st. and Southampton, L. I. She made her debut several years ago, and is a sister of Dorothea E. Gay.

With soft grey eyes and light brown hair—which she arranges in a distinctly "different" fashion—Sophie has been surrounded by ardent suitors ever since her debutante year, and I still recall the season when the match-makers were certain she would murmur "yes" to Craig Biddle, Jr.

It is interesting to note in that connection that Bronson Winthrop Griscom's paternal grandmother, the late Mrs. Clement A. Griscom, was born Frances Biddle of the Quaker city.

Bronson is a son of the distinguished Lloyd C. Griscom by his first wife, Elizabeth Duer Bronson Griscom, who died in 1914.

2 Quit Otis House Posts

At the 21st annual meeting of the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities at the ancient Harrison Gray Otis mansion, Cambridge and Lynde sts., the retirement from office, each after seven years' service, of Capt. Thomas G. Frothingham, librarian, and the Rev. Glenn Tilly Morse, director of the museum, was announced.

On motion of Miss Clara Endicott Sears resolutions appreciative of the long and valuable service of Capt. Frothingham and Morse, were unanimously adopted.

Charles K. Bolton, president of the society, presided at the meeting since it was founded through the efforts of William Sumner Appleton, still corresponding secretary.

Bolton announced that within a year the society had acquired by gift of two former governors of New Hampshire, originally Massachusetts men, Huntley L. and Roland D. Spaulding, an ancient grist mill at Townsend Harbor, Mass., near the old Conant House, which is in time to revert to the society.

These officers were elected:

Tech Co-Eds Not Ideal Girl Type, Engineers Say

Technology co-eds, despite their laudable efforts to secure education, fall by far to measure up to the standard of the "ideal girl" of the male members of the student body, according to information gained from a survey by the student publication, the Tech.

Commenting editorially on the results of the survey the Tech delivers a withering blast at those members of the gentler sex whose pursuit of learning gives them no time for men.

In the midweek issue, after quoting several student groups concerning the Tech co-eds, the publication says:

"Our co-eds are a pretty lousy bunch. They all seem to be the kind that like to study and aren't interested in men. The stenographers (at M. I. T.) are better."

LIKE THEM FEMININE

According to the findings made in the recent survey from groups selected at random from various classes, the male students like girls and they like them feminine. She can be blonde, brunette, red-haired, in fact almost anything except fat. They can be tall of short as long as they are not too solemn to enjoy a good time.

Speaking of good times, the Tech student learned that the prime requisite of the ideal girl was proficiency in dancing. But the "boop-boop-a-doop" girl is out and so is the heavy drinker. The ideal girl may drink on occasion, but never get drunk and the girl who swears publicly is also verboten. A few fervent cuss words are all right as long as this is done privately.

MANNISH WOMEN BARRED

Of course, the ideal girls of the individual students differ in several respects. It was learned that some like short girls while others prefer them tall. It is agreed, however, that they should not be too plump or light. Then again, fluffy hair appeals to some of the Engineers, while smooth-haired maidens are to others the ultimate of perfection. The length of hair seems to make little difference to the Tech male, although the long-haired beauty had a slight lead over her bobbed-haired sister.

The survey reveals that Tech students have a great dislike for mannish women which may explain their attitude toward the co-eds. They seem in general to prefer the old-fashioned girl.

The Tech boys believe that clothes make the woman as well as the man and therefore demand their ideals be stylish and also neat and snappy in dress.

The ideal girl must also be intelligent and able to carry on her end of the conversation and must be able to enjoy an evening at home as well as at a theater or dance.

False Step in Color Ruins Effect

By ANN ARDEN

YOU MUST be wary when you select your accessories this season, a false step in color, and your costume is ruined! This may seem a stern warning but you will see how true it is when you start to add that bit of color contrast with a necklace, a scarf or some similar detail. Accessories to be right should not stand apart from the costume as if they were an afterthought, and often a bad one at that; they should be so much a part of the whole that you think of them only in relation to the particular costume which they complement. If you choose dark accents for the light costumes or vice-versa for dark ones, make sure that they are as nearly perfect in color as possible. Paris is helping this trend along brilliantly by showing accessories along with the costume.

* * *

* * *

THE FULL skirt swishes the ankles to reveal a ruffled petticoat beneath. The matching jacket repeats the ruffles on the sleeve edge, while its small collar, revers and tie sash are faced in pink. The complementing accessories include Chanel's rhinestone and link necklace, in which large and small stones alternate; the dainty earrings match the necklace. The three bangle bracelets include Chanel's baguette rhinestones, one with sapphire inserts. The bag entirely of small pearls in unusual design has convenient chain handle.

* * *

THE WHITE kid gloves are 16-button length; and the pumps worn with this costume are of white moire, the eyelet trim dyed sea shell pink, and posed over silver kid underlay, the hose complexion tone shadow mesh.

* * *

THE GLOVE wardrobe begins with the four-button pull-on chamois for sportswear. In chamois yellow, beige or white.

* * *

WITH the short-sleeved pastel frocks, eight-button gloves of suede will be worn. Chamois yellow is smart, also white or a soft off-white shade, beige and black.

* * *

SPRING "FASHION WEEK"

Spring Dresses Are Feminine

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

FASHION WEEK—presenting Easter and Spring fashions in coats, dresses, suits, hats, accessories and men's clothing

DRESSES are certainly, definitely and dramatically feminine this Spring. Spring dresses are dresses.

They have all the charm and grace that a lovely lady has.

Silhouette Is Feminine

Their silhouette is feminine. As feminine as yourself. Because it follows the feminine figure. Outlining curves where they should be outlined. Making smooth lines where lines should be smooth.

Their details are feminine. Fashion likes fine handwork or trimming that looks like handwork. Fagotting . . . hemstitching . . . lace insertions . . . crocheted edgings. The kind of work that feminine fingers used to do . . . and still do—sometimes.

Fashion likes lingerie trimming. Lace collars and cuffs. And fine batistes . . . and organdies . . . and eyelet embroideries.

Dress Fashion Facts

Matching jackets everywhere. And most of them short.

• • •

• • •

• • •

Pleats the favorite means of skirt fullness. Often stitched down to the knee . . . then falling free.

• • •

Most necklines a little higher. And the cowl draping a favorite.

• • •

Most dresses belted . . . or girdled . . . or sashed. Marking the normal waistline.

• • •

• • •

Fewer prints this Spring than last. More plain colors this Spring than last. And the fashionable plain colors are the unusual, "off" shades. But navy leads them all.

These Are Fashion's Dresses

LOUELLA PARSONS

Louella Parsons, motion picture editor of Hearst newspapers, and Ann Harding, dainty screen star, in an intimate pose. Miss Parsons interviewed Miss Harding last night on the radio and a whole lot of secrets of Hollywood were revealed to Mr. and Mrs. Movie Fan.

MISS PARSONS INTERVIEWS ANN HARDING

Los Angeles, March 12 (UB)—Ann Harding, screen star, last night disclosed for the first time the part the late Rudolph Valentino played in her screen career.

She told the story during an intimate radio interview conducted by Miss Louella Parsons, motion picture editor of Universal Service and the Hearst newspapers, who introduced this newer screen celebrity.

There is something about the radio talks of Miss Parsons and the film stars that brings these favorites close and intimately to their public. Last night's chat was a delightful example of this

RUDY IMPRESSED

Miss Harding told Miss Parsons that her first screen test had been made by the "Sheik" and that it had been "awful." Mr. Valentino and his wife, Natacha Rambova, had attended a performance of "Tarnish," in which Miss Harding was playing in New York. They were so impressed with her beauty, charm and talent they paid her a visit backstage and Rudy persuaded the little blonde actress to let him make a test of her.

"Did you tell him you were eager to play in pictures?" Miss Parsons asked her.

"No," said Miss Harding, "as a matter of fact I wasn't and I told him I wouldn't even consider it unless I knew all about the play and the part. I was so afraid I might be asked to appear in scanty clothing or do something shocking—and I was so easily shocked."

BUDDY ROGERS NEXT

That must have been a surprise to the many girls who would have been eager to play opposite Valentino. But lawsuits and one thing and another tended to interfere and Mr Valentino was never able to carry out his intention to have Miss Harding as his leading lady.

Miss Harding is a young woman who has definite views about her work, her home and her recreation. She was surprised when Miss Parsons asked her about her tennis, flying and the other sports in which she shares an interest with her actor husband, Harold Bannister.

"Isn't there anything you don't hear about?" she asked Miss Parsons.

Next week Miss Parsons is going to give the leading men a break. She will interview Buddy Rogers Wednesday evening and the fliepers will get a thrill when the young Paramount star speaks over the radio.

BOOK RACKET SWINDLERS USE HOOVER NAME

New York, March 12 (AP)—The New York American today said federal authorities had uncovered book selling rackets in which the promoters had collected about $900,000 through the unauthorized use of the names of President Hoover, Vice-President Curtis, Calvin Coolidge and other prominent persons.

Among the others, the paper said, are Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith.

The American reported that Assistant Federal Attorney Edward I. Aranow raided a publishing firm, seized records and subpoenaed officials for questioning.

Letters of prominent men, extolling Lincoln Memorial University, the National Lincoln League and the Disabled American Veterans, were used by salesmen, it was said, to secure subscriptions to two sets of books under the guise that the money would go to these organizations.

Readers of this paper from time to time have perhaps seen exceptionally large advertisements of certain motion pictures.

These ads are placed by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Company in cooperation with our theatre. The M-G-M policy of advertising is NEVER to shout about a picture unless the picture deserves it. Only in this way will faith with the public be kept.

Among the pictures which lately you have seen highly praised are "Min and Bill," "Reducing," "Inspiration," "Paid," "The Big House" and "Trader Horn"

All these attractions have merited the emphasis which this paid-for space has given.

And now Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer continues its policy of TRUTH IN ADVERTISING by shouting that you must see the newest of screen attractions "THE PRODIGAL" starring LAWRENCE TIBBETT and featuring Esther Ralston, Roland Young and Cliff Edwards.

WRECKAGE PILED HIGH ON BOW

TRAPPED IN SHATTERED FORECASTLE

VIEW OF THE MARY R. MULLINS

The dangers of men who go down to the sea in the Boston fishing fleet were brought home in dramatic manner when the fishing schooner, Mary R. Mullins, was struck by a three-masted ghost ship off Highland light as the Mullins, heavily laden with fish, was working back to port from the Georges Bank. The ghost ship, Capt. Foley of the Mullins said, slipped away in the darkness before her identity could be learned. The picture at the left shows the shattered bow of the Mullins, while the center picture show Dennis Mullen, Rollin Riley and Morris Doyle, three members of the crew of the Mullins, who were trapped in the damaged forecastle for some time before they gained their freedom. The picture at the right shows a full view of the Mullins, piled with wreckage. None of the crew of 10 were injured in the crash. They said the crew of the schooner that struck them failed to offer aid. It is thought the vessel might have been a darkened rum-runner. (Staff photos.)

Secret Six Foe's Gun Found by Hank

What Has Gone Before

Louie Scorpio, called "Slaughterhouse," champion steer killer of the stockyards and winner of the revolver prize at the butchers' annual picnic, joins the bootleg racket run by Johnny Franks. His decision is clinched by the appearance at Franks' cafe of "Peaches," a beauty of the underworld. The gang invades the territory of Joe Colimo, a rival racketeer, with a truckload of beer. Fight ensues, in which Colimo's brother is killed. Colimo puts Scorpio "on the spot," but fails to kill him. The latter returns to the steak house and shoots Franks to death, becoming the leader. "The Secret Six" is organized to fight crime. Scorpio's gang wins out in the election for mayor. Scorpio has Colimo killed and becomes the "Big Shot."

CHAPTER 19

Hank Is Discovered

IN SCORPIO'S bedroom Hank searched again. The dresser drawer yielded what he wanted. He put it into his pocket and stepped back into the library.

Suddenly he stiffened to immobility.

He had reached for his revolver.

He heard a stealthy step. Metz, outside the door, blinked uneasily, turned as though to return to Scorpio's card table, then, instead, opened the library door and peered in. Hank flattened himself against the wall, behind a portiere. Metz snapped on the light, and his eyes swept the room.

An open drawer caught the gangster's eye.

Meets Anne

He snapped out the light, and, hastening to the lounge, beckoned Scorpio and Gardenia.

"Metz thinks someone's in the house," Scorpio whispered to Gardenia. Grimly the men followed him down the hall to the library door. Hank, within the library, backed into the bedroom.

Silently they reached the room.

"Yeah? Crazy like a fox," frowned Scorpio.

FLAMES SWEEP MELROSE THEATER

Heavy damage was done to the auditorium of the Melrose Theater and several shops and offices in the building, at 435-445 Main st., Melrose as a three-alarm fire swept through the structure early today.

The damage was estimated at upwards of $25,000.

Auto traffic on Main st., a principal artery for the early morning rush to Boston, was detoured as firemen cluttered the street with lines of hose. Trolleys were at a standstill for an hour, until some of the hose lines were removed to make a passage for them.

FIREMEN INJURED

The blaze was discovered shortly after 6:30 by Patrolman William A. Riley, who saw smoke pouring from the roof of the building.

On arrival of fire apparatus a second alarm was ordered sounded by Chief Frank A. Neuman, calling all Melrose companies to the scene. A third alarm was sounded later. Apparatus from Wakefield and Malden also responded to a call for help.

One fireman, Dominic Muirenan suffered deep gashes on his hands when he was showered with flying glass. He was treated at the scene by a doctor and returned to duty.

STARTED IN BALCONY

The fire apparently started in the balcony of the theater near the picture projection booth, and worked upward through the roof. The rear of the auditorium was extensively damaged by the flames which also worked into the theater offices.

A woman's shop and book store in the first floor were badly damaged, while the flames also worked havoc in two offices and a beauty parlor on the second floor of the building.

The theater is owned and managed by Irving Green of Brookline, who is connected with the management of a chain of theaters throughout the district.

VICTIMS OF DRUG SUE AND GET PAID

MARY CUNEO ALMA FOBIANO

Two North End girls were made sick by drugged candy they allege in suits against Othello T. Marchiano of Jamaica Plain, claiming he gave them candy at a theater party. Each one asked damages to the amount of $20,000. The court awarded them $500.

Jamaica Plain Man Says He Did Not Know Sweets Were Not Good

Two attractive North End girls, who sued Othello T. Marchioni of Hyde Park ave., Jamaica Plain, charging he made them ill with drugged candy, were awarded $300 and $200 in Municipal civil court today.

Miss Anna Fopiano 21 of 197 Salem st., who sued for $5,000 damages was awarded $300 and Miss Mary Cuneo 21 of 195 Salem st., who sued for $5,000 was given $200.

Both girls testified they were given candy by Marchioni in a theater and after eating them, became ill. They were treated at the City Hospital. Later a sample of the candy was tested by a physician, they testified. Atty. Cosimo D. Navarro, of Watertown, told the court.

Marchioni in his own defense, said he did not know there was anything wrong with the candy.

10 IN PERIL IN SHIP CRASH

Ten fishermen on the Boston schooner Mary R. Mullins narrowly escaped death early today off Highland Light in a "hit and-run" sea crash with another schooner.

The bow of the Mullins, her deckhouse, her two masts, part of her forward gunwhale and many deck fittings were torn away in the crash.

Capt. James Foley, who was in the deckhouse, and another fisherman on lookout were mingled in the debris, but escaped injury.

The rest of the crew were below decks but were thrown around by the impact.

According to Capt. Foley, the other schooner was a three-master, apparently outbound from Boston. He said she slipped away in the darkness of early morning without making known her identity or offering help.

No record of a three-master was contained in shipping records for yesterday or early today and shipping men were of the opinion that the other vessel may have been a darkened rum runner. Capt. Foley said his look out saw no lights.

The Mullins was on her return trip to Boston from Grevices Bank fishing grounds with 50,000 pounds of fish aboard.

EX-SECRETARY ASKS PAYMENT OF $222.50

Court Gives Sanborn Until Tomorrow to Appear; a Default Is Threatened

John "Handsome Jack" Sanborn, veteran of marital troubles in court, today was haled into court over his dog but failed to appear.

Sanborn was made defendant by Mrs. Lee Ricketson, his former secretary, who seeks a board bill for "Princess," Sanborn's valuable pedigreed dog.

When he failed to appear today the court ordered him notified to appear tomorrow or a judgment would be returned through default.

40 WEEKS' BOARD DUE

The court declaration of Mrs. Ricketson charged failure of Sanborn to pay 40 weeks board totaling $200, and nine months of washing and care totaling $22.50.

The suit revealed that Sanborn's mother has moved uptown from her spacious Winchester estate the move causing Sanborn to board the dog when the uptown apartment proved too small.

Mrs. Ricketson said she was secretary to Sanborn at his automobile agency in Somerville and when Sanborn's mother moved to Beacon Hill he asked the secretary to board the dog at her home, 64 Dartmouth st., Somerville.

"Since then he has paid me only $168 for kennel rations and $2.50 for clipping her nails and bathing her," Mrs. Ricketson claimed.

Sanborn's marital troubles started nearly ten years ago following his society wedding to Miss Elsie Montgomery, daughter of a New York banker. They were divorced in 1924.

A few months later he married Eleanor G. Hunt, Arlington widow at Miami, Fla., and the couple were jailed in Massachusetts because the divorce time limit had not passed. They were divorced last year. Sanborn now makes his home with his mother at 118 Hemenway st., Back Bay.

DOG 'MUGGED' BY POLICE

The first instance of nose-printing in the history of the Boston police department, and probably the first in the country where a dog was the subject, was recorded today.

Despite the fact that Blitz, a valuable 11-months-old Doberman Pinscher lapped two coats of ink off his nose, the task was successfully performed and his owner obtained an accurate print.

J. Frank Thain of 1411 Commonwealth ave., Brighton, appeared at headquarters with Blitz and asked Inspector James R. Claflin, in charge of the fingerprint bureau, if a noseprint could be made.

He explained he wanted an accurate method of identifying the dog in case he were lost or stolen.

Inspector Claflin said he had heard of cattle being nosepainted in the West. He examined Blitz's nose, found it to be a distinct pattern and assigned Max Singer, an assistant, to the task.

"BLITZ" POSES FOR NOSEPRINT

INSPECTOR MAX SINGER "BLITZ" J. FRANK THAIN

Dogs' paws are much alike, it seems. When it comes to noses it's different. No two canines, according to experts, have the same whorls in their nostrils. That's why Inspector Singer is shown at police headquarters obliging J. Frank Thain of Brighton by "mugging" his Doberman Pinscher, "Blitz," for identification purposes. (Staff photo.)

New Rules for 1600 Special Police

More than 1600 special police, employed by private companies, were warned by Police Commissioner Hultman today that they must call for their badges by April 1 and comply with the new fingerprint and photograph regulations.

Under the new rules men assigned to police duty in theaters, steamship wharves, railroads and similar pursuits must all be fingerprinted and provide a photograph for police headquarters files.

FIGHT ON DOLAN WILL OPENS

The evolution of Mrs. Mary A Dolan from a humble employe of a dressmaking establishment to Mme. Driscoll, owner of one of Boston's most fashionable modistes, was related today in Norfolk probate court by Daniel J. Lyne, attorney for the beneficiaries of Mrs. Dolan's will.

Cornelius and Daniel R. Driscoll, her brothers, are contesting their late sister's will, which left her business to Miss Josephine Riley, an employe for 20 years. The rest of her $500,000 estate was divided among relatives, friends and charitable institutions.

Attorney Lyne introduced Mrs Dolan's life story as evidence that the strength of character which made her a success in the business world would not have permitted her to be unduly influenced in making her will, as her brothers charge.

"She was a woman of indomitable will," said the attorney. "Her will was executed some years before her death by an attorney of high standing, and she was of sound mind then at the time of her death."

PRIVATE RITES FOR GUSTAFSON

The body of William Gustafson, native of Arlington and famous basso of the Metropolitan Opera Co., who killed himself in New York, Tuesday night, was to be brought home today for burial.

Mrs. Gustafson, with her two children, Elizabeth, 7, and William, 6, and her brother-in-law, William Warshauer, were to accompany the remains. Funeral services were to be private.

According to the authorities, Gustafson, a World War veteran and scion of an old New England family, shot himself in his New York apartment in a moment of rage.

This was brought on, they said, by nervous irritability through worry over the illness of his wife. The basso's contract with the Metropolitan Opera Co. had been renewed 10 days ago.

Cereal Hurling Lets Husband Get Divorce

Breakfast cereal hurled at him by his wife resulted in a divorce being granted to Joseph Fowler of Dudley st., in Suffolk Probate Court. Fowler's suit was a cross bill to the divorce action filed by Mrs. Olive Fowler of Fisher ave., Roxbury. It was erroneously stated yesterday that Mrs. Fowler obtained the decree.

The husband, taking the stand after his wife had testified, said that in addition to throwing cereal his wife had attacked him several times inflicting scratches on his face. They were married on the Fourth of July, 1928, he said, and separated in December, 1929.

Pair Given 15 Years as Girl Attackers

Fifteen to 20 years in prison were meted out to Henry J. McHugh of Main st. and John J. O'Donnell of Crane st., both of Woburn, when they faced Middlesex Court today on a charge of statutory offense against two Allston girls on Feb. 1.

The men, it is alleged, picked up the girls on that date and promised to drive them home, but instead took them to a factory.

For COLDS

We all catch colds and they can make us miserable; but yours needn't last long if you will do this: Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin just as soon as possible after a cold starts. Stay in the house if you can—keep warm. Repeat with another tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin every three or four hours, if those symptoms of cold persist. Take a good laxative when you retire, and keep bowels open. If throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in a quarter-glassful of water and gargle. This soothes inflammation and reduces infection. There is nothing like Bayer Aspirin for a cold, or sore throat. And it relieves aches and pains almost instantly. The genuine tablets, marked Bayer, are absolutely harmless to the heart.

'PETER THE SHEIK,' LEADER OF BLACK HAND BOMBERS, DIES

GANG DESERTS TERRORIST IN DEATH

Suspect In Demora Murder Succumbs From Pneumonia in Winthrop

Pietro Giambruno, alias Peter the Sheik, said by police to have been leader of a notorious Black Hand and bombing gang, who was questioned in connection with the Salvatore Demora murder in 1929, is dead.

Giambruno, charged with responsibility for at least 75 bombings in connecting with which he server a prison sentence, died a prosaic death from pneumonia in Winthrop.

DESERTED BY GANG

Today his body lay in Langone's undertaking parlors, 190 North st, unmourned by any of the gang with which police charge he terrorized New York's Little Italy for years.

For months following discovery of the body of 30-year-old Salvatore Demora in the Saugus marshes in 1929, police made unsuccessful efforts to connect Giambruno with the crime.

Detectives shadowed him day and night, but surveillance was eventually lifted when handwriting experts in convention in New York failed to identify as his, writing on Black Hand letters received by the boy's father, Santo Damore.

$15 FOR BOMBING

Giambruno's career was first revealed to the police in 1912 when Joseph Pulaska, alias Andy Burke, made a 3000-word confession to Felix Di Martini, New York detective.

Pulaska charged Giambruno with being leader of a mob which had 75 bombings to its credit. He told of buying materials for bombs, and of placing them with others, receiving for his share of the work sums ranging from $12 to $80.

The then police commissioner, George Dougherty, ordered a roundup which resulted in the arrest of 15 men including Giambruno whom the commissioner characterized as "the body and brains of the gang."

GOT PRISON TERM

During the trial a number of the defendants turned State's evidence and Giambruno was sent to Great Meadow prison, in Westchester County, New York for from three to nine years.

After his release he came to Boston, and at the time of the Demora murder was living expensively in a downtown hotel

THE DANCE THAT LED TO DEATH

A Reporter's Story of a Famous Maine Murder Case

By PAUL WHELTON

(Who Worked on the Story as a Reporter)

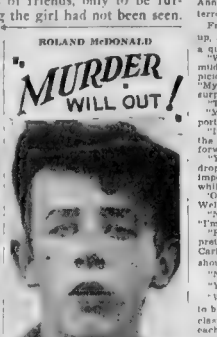
(In yesterday's installment was related how Louise Gerrish, 19-year-old school teacher of Amherst, Me., was shot to death and then stripped of her clothing by the murderer, one of the three town youths who had watched her dance, pajama-clad, in her boarding house. Today's installment tells how the murderer was revealed.)

Louise Gerrish was murdered and violated on a Wednesday evening. When Mrs. Williams, the landlady, awoke Thursday morning and found that the school teacher's bed had not been slept in, the landlady communicated with homes of friends, only to be further alarmed upon learning the girl had not been seen.

Then Mrs. Williams notified Sheriff Ward Westcott, who said he was not alarmed and would wait for time of school opening to see if Louise would appear.

School time arrived but not the teacher, and then Sheriff Westcott organized a posse

ROLAND McDONALD



VICTOR McDONALD

GRAVE FOUND

Nearly 24 hours after the slaying, several of the school children, who had been trailing the posse through woods and pastures, came upon a mound of earth at the fringe of the woods through which the murderer had dragged the body.

Almost at the first stroke of an experimenting stick, part of the missing girl's clothing came into view, for the hastily dug grave was shallow and the body was barely covered.

The rest of the posse were called and when the body was removed it was found that some of the clothing was wrongly placed on the body and that a piece of the teacher's silk underwear had been tied around the head, hiding her face.

A wave of anger rippled through the town as the hunt started for Louise Gerrish's slayer. Tramps were thought of immediately, but this theory was discarded when no one could be found who had seen a stranger and when it was recalled that tramps do not commonly carry shotguns.

Residents of the village were questioned, among them the pupils of Louise Gerrish, but nothing came of that. The girl's chums told of the note received by the teacher after the first pajama-dance party, and the writing of this note was readily identified by Robert Stevenson, 18-year-old laborer and farm hand, who said frankly that he was one of the "Peeping Toms" with aspiration toward poetry

COMPANION NAMED

His two companions across the street in the bushes were Roland McDonald, 18, and his brother Victor, 23, both of them pupils in Louise's class. Stevenson has a perfect alibi. He was accounted for through all the day and night of the murder date.

Roland McDonald, oldest boy in the murdered teacher's class, but one of the dullest, was questioned with his brother, both denying any knowledge of the crime. They were not suspected particularly because they had been with the posse in the hunt.

Seemingly there was no clue. The shotgun with which the teacher had been killed had not been seized, the spade with which the grave had been dug had not been found, and her rings, watch and handbag had not been located when a hand detained him. He turned to confront Anne

"What are you doing here?" she whispered

He had no time to [illegible] Scorpio and his men were approaching

Hunted

"Well, well" remarked Scorpio, mildly, though the glint of suspicion in his eyes was ominous "My old pal Hank! This is a surprise"

"To both of us," retorted Hank.

"Must have been something important brought you here

"It was!" The men turned at the interruption. Carl stepped forward

"You see, I asked Hank to drop up here, because I got an important message, for him a while back—"

"Oh, I see. You sent for him. Well—then let's so have a drink."

"No thanks," remarked Hank. "I'm on the wagon."

"Better have one—I have some pretty touch news for you," Carl placed his hand on Hank's shoulder

"Not Aunt Emma"

"Yes, Hank."

"Well, I'm glad you're the one to break it to me." The two men clasped hands and looked into each others eyes. The catchword was understood. And trust was again restored between them.

Scorpio eyed them darkly. The by-play hadn't fooled him

"I don't know what he came for—but there's something all wet about it," he whispered to Carmine. "When he leaves we'll trail him."

Carl and Hank continued to talk by the door

"I'll meet you in half an hour," promised Hank—you know—over at Aunt Emma's. Grandma will be there, too."

"Hank!" Carl called.

He turned. From the alcove beside the elevators Anne was beckoning him

"Please don't be unkind," the girl pleaded.

"We haven't seen each other for so long—and I've missed you so terribly—"

"That's quite evident," was the sarcastic rejoinder

"Hank—it's no use. You'll never understand. But I had to come down to warn you. Scorpio is suspicious. You're in terrible danger. Please go."

"I'll go. I've got what I wanted. Good night—and good luck to you."

He hurried to the sidewalk and flagged a taxi

The taxi driver nodded curtly, and pulled away from the curb At 42d st. he pressed three times against his brake lever

The taxi's tail-light glowed three times in the darkness. And, at the signal, another taxi pulled out and quietly followed.

In it sat Scorpio and two men

"There's something in the wind," Scorpio insisted, "and it looks like that damned mail double-crossed us. She went down there to tip him off"

"Naw—I don't think so," responded Carmine.

"You know they used to be stuck on each other—and all about their blow-up. I think she went down to try and make up with him. But it's funny how he came in. Maybe Carl did send for him"

"Maybe. Carl wouldn't cross us —I've paid him nearly 25 grand. But it don't do no harm to tell him—because ya' can't never tell. Just like we'll see what this here Hank is up to."

Hank, oblivious of his trailers pulled up at police headquarters and nonchalantly entered the desk sergeant's office. Scorpio and his men followed, passed down the hall and waited in a dark angle, their eyes glued on the sergeant's door

He passed into th washroom closed the door, and from his coat removed the object he had purloined from the penthouse

RECORDS SHOW NOBLE BRIGHT STUDENT

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Copyright, 1931, by the Boston Evening American

In the previous installments of Russell Noble's life story the "model boy's" early life and schooling, his hobbies and ambitions, were described.

CHAPTER 4

Haverhill, March 12—Russell Noble was a "regular fellow.'

When he entered high school, it didn't take him long to make his charming but dynamic personality felt.

Shortly after entering, he was was "taken up" by the "real" boys and with them, through nearly four years, he maintained lasting friendships.

Boys with whom in his senior year he was to share the honor of membership in the "Unit," a fraternity whose roll numbered scions of prominent Haverhill families. Boys who excelled scholastically and to whom the school looked for future laurels

John Jewett, Grantley Ross, Russ McKeon, Lewis Stone and Patrick Fitzgerald were "frat" brothers of Young Noble. They were his pals.

They have signified their faith in the tousled-haired boy, held in Essex County jail as the slayer of Mrs Clara E. C. Ellis, wealthy widow

STARTS BANK ACCOUNT

Entering high school in 1926, Russell enrolled for a commercial course. To celebrate the event, Mrs Noble started a savings account for him

In his name, $5 was deposited and to this account Russell proudly added as the weeks and months went by at the same time increasing his income by selling more papers

High school brought many expenses and the boy figured a way to earn another dollar He started working for Karl Brackett, florist, after school. In this work he carried out many of his own theories about floral culture.

The first high school year proved no milestone. He took his studies eagerly and surmounted all obstacles, completing the term with an average of 97 per cent.

His ability was recognized and Russell experienced his first "conference"

STUDIED FLOWERS

At this time Russell was a zealous hiker Every Sunday afternoon, after a morning devoted to psalm singing and religious instruction, he tramped through the outlying districts, returning with his arms laden with wild flowers

"He took these flowers, that I thought were weeds," his brother, Charles said "took them up to his room, and carefully took them apart trying to find out what they were made of and how they grew together."

But these happy months were not to last long

A second tragedy was to befall the young boy, he was to pass another milestone which would leave a lasting effect on the lad's mind

If Mrs. Cora Noble hadn't died when the youngest of her four sons depended upon her most for motherly sympathy and interest, sympathy and understanding, Russell Noble today might be still "one of the high school boys with a brilliant future" instead of a prisoner of the Commonwealth charged with murder.

"He never got over that blow," a relative said. "The boy brooded for weeks, refusing to go to school, refusing to leave his little room. Instead, he read constantly from his Sunday school books, the books that interested him in Christian Endeavor work."

Russell will never forget the anniversary of his mother's death, September 19 The memory is sad, but around such memories has the life of the youngster been written.

Charles said he never forgot her Every year Russell gave her something, the brother revealed, although she no longer resides in Haverhill.

BLIGHTED HIS LIFE

Mrs. Noble's death temporarily blighted the young fellow's life. He turned to the solace of religion more than ever and became unusually fervent in his talks to the juvenile division of the church Sunday school

Two tragedies were a bit more than the boy could bear.

At this time he made definite plans for his future. He reminded his brothers that he was the youngest, and that while he knew he could count on their assistance, he wanted to make safe the steps to secure his position in life.

"He didn't talk then like a silly kid. His smart head uttered old ideas as he told me of his plans to study agriculture and floral culture," Charles continued.

While Russell didn't need snow to make him hold his head high, it made him conceive of the necessity of so doing and resolved extra curriculum activity to add to his fund.

"Wait and see, Charlie," he told his brother. "I'll make good I have to now. I can't sponge on you long."

"Punctuality was his middle name," James L. Fox, Washington st. newsdealer and the boy's employer, commented. "Promptly at 4 o'clock he gathered these papers and made his deliveries."

For several weeks following Mrs. Noble's funeral, Russell abandoned all work. His home was to be broken up, the children were to be separated, and new living quarters had to be found for each of the family.

(The breaking up of the home, the influence it had on young Russell's life, and incidents of his later high school life, will be described in Russell Noble's life story in tomorrow's Boston Evening American).

RICHARD BENNETT GETS FEATURE ROLE IN MARION DAVIES' NEXT FILM

LESLIE HOWARD ALSO IN "FIVE AND TEN" CAST

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

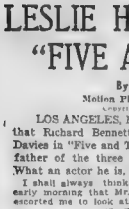
LOS ANGELES, March 12—I am greatly interested to hear that Richard Bennett will play the father opposite Marion Davies in "Five and Ten." I speak of the veteran stage actor, father of the three Bennetts, Constance, Barbara and Joan. What an actor he is, too.

I shall always think of the early morning that Mr. Bennett escorted me to look at a movie in which he was starred. I believe it was "Damaged Goods" and it was shown in Chicago so long ago that Marion Davies, the star of "Five and Ten" was then in the nursery. Now don't start adding.

Anyway, Dick is a grand actor with plenty of good stage background and Irene Rich plays Marion's mother, Lillian Bond her rival, Kent Douglass, her brother and as we said before, that excellent cake eater, Leslie Howard will be Marion's leading man.



Louella O. Parsons.

Robert Leonard is ready to start rehearsing "Five and Ten" and it moves along as speedily as "It's a Wise Child." In another month it will be made and ready for a preview. They do work fast in the studios these days.

I HAVEN'T heard a word from John Colton in ages and ages. Furthermore I haven't heard anything about him until yesterday I happened to drop in at the Paramount Studio and start gossiping. There I learned that John had just been signed by Walter Wanger in New York to write an original for Tallulah Rankhead. He is not only writing the original story, but the adaptation and dialogue as well. The playwrights and authors these days are doing far more for the screen than for the stage or book publishers and why not with such a valuable market. W. R. Burnett, author of "The Iron Man" and "Little Caesar" may be located now at Howard Hughes' offices at United Artists. He will work with Howard Hawks on "Scarface."

HORACE LIVERIGHT is apparently in Hollywood for keeps. He has been here for some months looking over the field studying picture making and imbibing Hollywood atmosphere. Charles Rogers now has signed him on a long term contract with the idea of making the former publisher a supervisor or perhaps a director. His principal job, however, is to find proper stories and certainly that shouldn't be difficult when you consider that was Mr. Liveright who published all of Eugene O'Neil's works and produced "An American Tragedy."

WILLIAM POWELL wins. We apologize and all is well. Hal Wallis told us yesterday that Walter Huston plays the detective in "The Blue Moon Murder" by S. S. Van Dine, and not William Powell. Remember, I said that Bill Powell must have changed his mind for it was these same melodramas that caused him to leave Paramount and flee to First National.

LOOK OUT, Greta Nissen, there may be danger ahead. I am always worried when anyone starts out to be a star. I agree with Joel McCrae, who said "Call Me Anything but a Star." It is only meant for a very few people. Well, Greta Nissen is to be the second star on the Fox lot, Will Rogers is the only one who has that title. She is to be starred if you please, in "Transatlantic," opposite Edmund Lowe.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: ONA MUNSON, one of Hollywood's beauties, being much admired by the bachelors' table at the Embassy. DOROTHY PETERSON lunching at the same place. BUDDY ROGERS and ANITA PAGE apparently interested in each other. ERNEST PASCAL, author, back in town. LEW AYRES getting ready to go away on a vacation. LADY INVERCLYDE and LOTHAR MENDES lunching at the Embassy but for the first time in weeks not together. The handsome DON GEORGE, champion wrestler, and JACK DEMPSEY reported to have signed to make a movie. MR. AND MRS. VICTOR VARCONI inviting a few friends in for a Hungarian dinner. EDNA MURPHY and MERVYN LE ROY on their way to New York sending a telegram from Albuquerque. BILLIE DOVE looking like the cover of a magazine chatting with SALLY EILERS and other patrons of a Hollywood beauty shop. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Sure-Fire on the Stage Trigger

ELLISTON A. VINSON

TIBBETT'S ACT WON PRAISE

Lawrence Tibbett

Tibbett was starring as a rohatic act for the benefit of little Wally Albright and Suzanne Ransom, child play ers, who appear in the production.

"Unusual Europe" the Last De Cou Lecture

The third and last lecture of the season by Evanson De Cou will take place in Symphony Hall next Saturday afternoon. "Unusual Europe" is the title. The first half of the lecture will consist of photographs which he took last August in Leningrad and Moscow. The second part will be devoted to the quaint buildings and bridges of Prague.

LILY PONS AT BEST IN LONG PROGRAM

By MOSES SMITH

LILY PONS, young French singer who overwhelmed her audience at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York a couple of months ago, did the same last night in her first Boston appearance, at Symphony Hall.

The test was more difficult last night, for she had to keep an audience interested, by her own efforts, for two hours. She did so. The audience did not cheer, for it was a well-behaved "society" audience, but it gave "the little girl a big hand."

The "little girl" has a lovely voice, of quality not luscious, but generally pure and even. It is a lyric voice, capable of coloratura range and technique. Severe, limes she went up to E. Most of her singing, even of difficult roulades, is done with a minimum of effort. Mme. Pons has the singing temperament. She has also a musical temperament, intelligence, freshness and charm. In fact, there seems to be no reason why she should not get better, rather than worse, as an eye about for her successor.

Unless she gets "swell-headed" which does not seem likely; or unless she overworks, and that is more plausible. Last night so early in her career she seemed tired and overtaxed. What is more minor throat troubles. Of course she sang many extra numbers. This was gracious and kind, but mistaken from a physical standpoint.

CHAPLIN HAS 'A' COMPLEX, PALS SAY

CHARLIE CHAPLIN has an "A" complex! At least, it seems, when recalling the various leading women who have associated with the comedian in his screen work, the first letter of the alphabet is significant.

In Chaplin's latest United Artists photoplay, "City Lights" now at the Tremont, a personality hitherto unknown to theatergoers is introduced in his leading lady, Virginia Cherrill. The young woman plays the feminine lead in a difficult portrayal, that of a blind flower girl. Miss Cherrill was assigned the part after numerous actresses had been carefully considered. She was drawn from private life.

It was after Virginia Cherrill signed the Chaplin contract that the "A" complex of the comedian was discovered. The last letter of the given name is where the theory is drawn from. As in Virginia, the final "A."

Edn-A Purviance was for many years Chaplin's leading woman. She graduated to stardom with the production, "A Woman of Paris," and Chaplin then cast an eye about for her successor.

Georgi-A Hale then entered. After serving as leading woman in "The Gold Rush," this young woman became a factor in motion pictures and again Chaplin was forced to find a leading

Virgini-A Cherrill was spotted for the all important role in "City Lights," and she completed the fourth of the given "A" ladies.

Another strange fact about Chaplin's leading women is that but in one instance has any of them been experienced in screen acting. Georgia Hale is the only exception, and prior to her work with the producer comedian she had been in only one picture.

Maloney-Carnera Film on Bowdoin Sq. Bill

Beginning today for the last half of this week the Bowdoin Square will have special pictures and vaudeville. As an extra attraction there will be shown talking pictures of the recent Maloney-Carnera boxing bout in Florida. Other films are "The Right of Way" and "The New Moon." On Friday night bargain vaudeville is featured in the form of extra acts. Now vaudeville is also on the bill for the remainder of the week.

Millie's Toast

HELEN TWELVETREES

Helen continues to draw crowds to Keith's by her superb acting in "Millie." Rushing business will keep the photoplay a second week.

Danforth-D'Aranvi

Pauline Danforth, the American pianist, and Yelly d'Aranyi, the Hungarian violin virtuoso, will give a joint concert in Symphony Hall on Sunday afternoon, March 15, at 3:30.

STICKS BY GUN FOR MUSICAL COMEDY

GUY ROBERTSON here in the Hirsbach-Romberg-Caesar musical romance "Nina Rosa," now at the Shubert, alone remains faithful to musical comedy out of a half-dozen baritone stars. Four of them, Lawrence Tibbett, J. Harold Murray, Dennie King and Robert Halliday, have gone in for pictures while the fifth, Walter Woolf, has given up temporarily at least, musical comedy for "straight" comedy.

Robertson alone has held out against the screen and has repeatedly turned down offer after offer for pictures and stands as the last of the great baritones devoting his talents exclusively to the spoken stage.

Prior to "Nina Rosa," Robertson will be remembered for his stellar performances in "Song of the Flame" and "Rose Marie," the latter breaking all records for musical comedy runs in Boston. These are not the limits of Robertson's stage appearances however, for he is accredited with having sung more hit numbers in musical comedy than any of his contemporaries, being responsible in some measure for the popularity of "Love Nest," "Wildflower" and "Tumbalina" from "Wildflower," "Indian Love Call" and "Rose Marie" from "Rose Marie," "The Lilac Domino Waltz" and the rousing "Song of the Flame."

Nina Rosa ends its long run next Saturday night.

TODAY'S TRUE STORY — THE WAY OF THE WICKED

Episode in Art Life

THERE ARE studios and studios. Frans Harlowe had an air of its own. For all the apparent litter, the odd collection of rugs and hangings, the unfinished canvases against the walls, there was still an atmosphere about it that cast a charm over the casual visitor and grew on the models that posed for the eccentric artist.

Harlowe was a good deal like the room in which he worked—it was difficult for his friends to tell whether he reflected the room or the room reflected him. His form was painting beautiful women, and his reputation was that of a light o' love.

All his models swore by him he was the essence of kindness o patience, of consideration Felice Terris knew all about him when she went into his studio to ask for a job.

Felice was trembling inward, when she entered the building the top floor of which contained the studio of the best known painter in the city. It wasn't one of those huge affairs such as one sees in the bigger cities with gorgeous entrances and marble foyers—but a modest pile of red brick, its interior no more impressive than its exterior.

He was standing before an unfinished portrait when Felice knocked on his door. A little cross at being disturbed, he called brusquely, "Come in."

Felice came to the point—"I want a job," she said, trying to smile.

"I see—modeling?" he paused a moment, but he had already taken in her good points—she was by far the most appealing applicant ever to visit his studio.

"Modeling, yes," she replied "I think I'd like the work—I know it's tiresome, but then"—she shrugged as though to say that any work is tiresome.

Harlowe took a turn about the room. "Ever done any posing?" he asked.

"Not to speak of," she answered, "with me it's just a case of putting on best assets I have in the most profitable and the pleasant est use"

"Hm!" Harlowe sat facing her. "Have you thought it out really? Have you considered all that it means? Are you prepared to pose in the nude, for instance, if that should be required"

Felice flushed. "Would that be necessary?" she asked.

"Possibly—I merely asked to find out how you felt about it—well, at present I haven't a thing—but if you'll leave your name and address I'll bear you in mind."

The look of disappointment that swept over her face and the tears that sprang into her eyes made him feel as though he had committed a crime. "Wait a minute," he said, "there is a job I could use you for—a head—"

"Oh"—she was suddenly a picture of delighted anticipation

"Suppose you come around tomorrow at 10"

Felice's roommate greeted her eager announcement with a frown. "Oh, I knew you'd get a chance all right—it hasn't that I've told you all about Harlowe—you don't know the ways of the wicked"

But Felice appeared at Harlowe's studio unafraid, and as the artist placed her in a big old-fashioned chair and draped a shimmering shawl over her shoulders—she felt as though she had been transported to another world.

For nearly three weeks Felice appeared regularly at Harlowes studio and watched the portrait grow. It was a lovely thing, and evoked paeans of admiration from his host of friends who clamored to meet the charming model.

But somehow Harlowe had changed; he seemed restless—he was no longer the gayest member of gay parties,

"Come back in a week," he said to Felice when the work was done.

The day before the week was up Felice received a bulky package and a letter marked personal.

She opened the letter first. It was from Harlowe. It read:

My dear Felice—When you receive this I shall be on my way to Paris. I have dismantling the studio and storing its contents. I am sending to you as a gift the portrait of yourself, over which you and I labored, and during the work on which I discovered that love comes to all men sooner or later. You are young, I am eighteen years your senior. My past is—well, my past.

"You told me when you first came to my studio that you had been working in a publishing house. If I had the right to express a wish—it would be this—that you would give up modeling and go back.

He had signed his name and given an address.

"He's giving you that?" cried.

"He's given me much more than that," said Felice, "I want you to keep it here for me—her eyes were shining—"I'm going to Paris—no, I can't (tell you why, yet, but I've saved enough."

"But how about money," gasped her roommate.

* * *

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"POUR LE SPORT," that so-much Paree says And to be chic for the sport it must be suitable timely, jos' exright for the particular sport. That is very important. If you do not wish Madame Fashion to put up her so-beautifully-taken-care-of hands at you My word, how could you sleep that night in your pajama top, or your hand-made nighty, if you had gone golfing in the wrong sort of costume that day! Could you eat your spinach, brown bread, and rhubarb—no butter—with the black cloud on your mind of having worn last year's beach shoes with THIS year's suit, or a nose-veil hat where a beret should have been

But thanks to something or other, the bars are down in ONE sport! The Love Game Madame Fashion leans back here, and is herself She relaxes and puts on her old felt slippers and smiles and takes a nap.

Everything is suitable in the game where a bit of heart is the puck the ball, the fish, the shuttle-cock What WHAT so fetching, so winning, so right, as a cloudy lace frock like an inverted parasol, shaded lights and the game played indoors? You can golf in shorts Roman sash, and no hat of your shining hair, left uncovered to immesh the enemy, and be as chic as a new thirty-dollar bonnet. You can punch the bag in flowered chiffon and fox fur. You can go a-fishing in a silk frock and patent kids. You can go "dumb bell" in a Sunday afternoon gown You can play tennis in the parlor, or badminton, as I said before, in lace and diamonds.

And the whole thing is oh, so proper. So jos' exright! So suitable! So timely! Dress for the game of love—in just anything you like that looks lovely upon you. Tiger Heart :: A Serial

By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

"Maybe Kitty—"

"Why should she write him notes when she has every opportunity to talk to him for hours on end?" he asked, skeptically.

"No, I think, mad likely, she's soloed Mary Smith's mission down here in the hall tonight, she wanted to communicate with Tracy—it was too dangerous to knock on his door loud enough to wake him. Unfortunately she didn't put it inside quite far enough. Yes, I think the solution to everything that's been puzzling us is right in our hands now. All that's needed is to bend over and slip the piece of paper out."

"I know—it's not a gentlemanly thing to do; it looks like eaves dropping, or opening other people's letters. As it happens, I think the circumstances warrants a little trickery. When you're dealing with dishonesty it's sometimes necessary to put a few scruples in your pocket. I'm going to to Tracy."

Garson's arm felt the restraining pressure of Connie's hand.

"It's a little tricky to take it but we don't have to read it. If it's really from Kitty," she said "It's like telling a white lie. Wait."

She moved swiftly, silently and in an instant she had in her hand the white, folded sheet of paper Unmolestingly, she opened it and glanced at the bottom for the signature Garson, watching over her face change and she looked at him speechless and nodded

"M. Smith," she whispered

Folding the paper, she pressed it in her hand; no need, now, for them to prolong this hushed scene in the hall. "Well read it downstairs"

Characteristically, Connie herself did not look again at the letter until she was fully dressed and in the library with Garson, where she put it into his hands.

"Sit here" he said, moving over on a leather divan. She sat beside him, they were so close together that her head was almost on his shoulder. Together they read the letter written with pencil on ruled paper. Its primness of handwriting was in sharp contrast to what was written

"My dear one—I've tried all day to get word with you alone, but impossible. Have been almost crazy ever since that other woman moved in the house. You can't imagine the hell I've gone through, dear Jim, watching her steal you away and vamping you out of your senses. You know I love you like no other woman on earth ever loved you, dear. I've stayed awake a hundred nights dreaming of you and yearning to be in your arms, even if you never cared for me that deep. I know I haven't got the education or the money that these other girls have got, but they couldn't make you happy like I could. I'd be a dog for you or a slave. I'd go to hell for you and be glad of the chance to burn up because I know what it is to love so hard that there couldn't be any limit to what I'd go through for your sake, Jim. Do you remember that one night when you ran across me out on the lawn and we walked down to the gate? You put your arms around me and kissed me and since then I've not been the same girl You're the only man I ever loved and, God knows, I'm willing to die for you or throw myself down under your feet and let you walk on me—sometimes I almost go crazy shut up in my room and knowing you are out making love to other girls and they making love to you. If my standing in life was different and I had money, darling, I know those other girls wouldn't have a chance.

Guard Against 'Ringworm' Infection

By DR. COPELAND.

VARIOUS names have been substituted for the old-fashioned word, "ringworm Most of them mean nothing, even to the doctor but all are applied to the disease known as Dr. Copeland Among the names, which are Tinea circinata, Tinea Corporis, Tinea gyrata, Tinea Dermatophytosis and Tinea tonsurans, the big word used for ringworm.

It is known used to be quite prevalent in the southern part of the United States. This was because of the habit some of the population had of walking without shoes.

The disease is caused by a parasite called the "tricnophyton fungus." This parasite is found in grass, shrubs and at times even indoors. This ailment is frequently transmitted to man by domestic animals, particularly by dogs and cats

The disease begins as one or two rounded red patches on the skin. They may be located on the face neck arms, body or le Within a few days these spots assume a circular shape with small pimples along the outer border of the circle The patches are easily recognized because of their ring-like shape

After the disease has contin ued for some time, healing begins in the center of the patch. The healing process extends to the edges.

Though there is rarely any itching or pain, the eruption spreads rapidly. Sometimes it involves the thighs, groins and other parts of the body

Since the condition is caused by a parasite or germ, the treatment consists in using ointments and lotions which are capable of killing the infecting agent without damage to the skin. Your doctor will tell you about the local treatment, but very likely he will prescribe something containing ammoniated mercury.

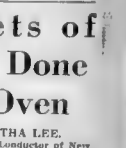
Fillets of Fish Done in Oven

By MARTHA LEE.

Organizer and Conductor of New England's Largest Housemakers' Club of Over 37,000

THANK YOU so much for the nice letters that you wrote about our Fish Chat the other day Certainly we can have more if you like, and no sooner said than done



Martha Lee

Firstly, a word on the methods of fish cookery When you boil fish it loses much of its valuable juices and we must remember that too intense heat makes it unpalatable and dry. The ideal way is oven cookery for fish—with little of the fishy odor escaping into the house

A favorite method of oven cookery is to sprinkle fish fillets with lemon juice and pepper, then dip them in heavily salted evaporated milk Place them on a well greased cookie sheet and cover them with buttered crumbs, and over this a sprinkling of finely minced bacon. Place the fillets in a very hot oven (500 F.) for from eight to ten minutes, when they will be perfectly cooked. The bread covering seals in all the juices, whereas if you bake fish with water in the pan the juices are coaxed out to mingle with the water and your fish is apt to be dry and tasteless.

CAPE COD PUFFIES

2¼ cups potato cubes
1 cup shredded codfish
¼ tsp. pepper
1 egg
Parsley

Boil the potato cubes, add the shredded codfish (unfreshened and cook but the potatoes are tender, then mash. Drain and mash. Add ¼ tsp. of pepper and beat with a fork until very light and fluffy. Add the well-beaten egg and beat again. Drop by small tablespoons into deep hot fat (390 F.) and cook to a golden brown. Drain on brown paper and garnish with parsley sprays.

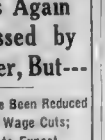
Wages Again Discussed by Banker, But---

Prices Have Been Reduced Without Wage Cuts; What to Expect

By B. C. Forbes

New York, March 12—When Albert H. Wiggin, head of the largest bank in America, recently urged that the lowering of wages would help to lay solid foundations for the fresh upbuilding of prosperity, he drew upon his head a storm of criticism.

That has not deterred George E. Roberts, vice-president of the Americas largest bank, from coming forward with a similar argument.



B. C. Forbes

Labor authorities claim that while there has been relatively little open cutting of wages, the same result has been achieved in very many directions by laying workers off and taking on others—or reengaging the former ones—at lower pay.

As already mentioned in this column, a great many corporations, even the strongest in the land, have reduced salaries 10 per cent or more.

It is entirely natural that workers should regard anyone who talks of lowering wages as anti-labor, hardboiled, utterly selfish, intent only on piling up more profit for themselves.

As a matter of fact Mr. Wiggin is not that type at all. He has been head of the Chase National Bank for 20 years and long ago earned an enviable reputation for progressive handling of associates and employes. A Chase executive told me some time ago that Wiggin had never dismissed a person he employed, no matter how drastic action might be, except for downright wrongdoing.

So, when this banker expressed the view that lower wages and lower costs would stimulate renewed buying and greater employment, he was not moved by hostility to workers.

• • •

Mr. Roberts was yesterday reported in connection with a speech he made before a large gathering of business men, as having "said that, while wages have not come down as they should, earnings have, because men are out of work, or working on part time; and that this sort of wage reduction is destructive, because it does not reduce the price of goods to the consumer, or restore the industrial equilibrium necessary to prosperity."

• • •

But isn't it an indisputable fact that the general level of prices has come down?

Authoritative compilations show that many commodities have fallen in pre-war quotations. They also show that the cost of living is down 10 to 15 per cent from the 1929 peak.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Department of Labor reports that the average retail food price is approximately 15 per cent lower than in the early part of last year. President Colby M. Chester, Jr., of the General Foods Corporation estimates the reduction during the last year at 12 to 15 per cent.

• • •

It is argued, of course, that high wages now enter less into the production of foodstuffs than into the production of other necessaries of life, such as homes, clothing, furniture, coal, shoes, hats, amusements, etc.

Yet the truth is that, with few exceptions, prices for these other things have also come down.

"Ah, yes," is retorted, "but these lower prices have been largely at the cost of normal profits. The country cannot hope to enjoy renewed prosperity as long as the majority of business enterprises are losing run at a loss or at such slender profits that they cut and pare and curtail at every turn."

• • •

What everyone is most interested in is not theorizing as to the wisdom or unwisdom of reducing wages, but in the very practical question, "What is likely to happen?"

My guess is that, if signs of recovery in general activity continue to multiply, very little more will be heard about lowering wages.

On the other hand, if the hopefor revival does not materialize, if the incipient spring betterment peters out, it will become a very live issue as to whether it would be for the greatest good of the greatest number, were a large number of wage earners to be put to work at reductions in wages, similar to the reduction in the cost of living, whether wages should be raised and funds continued to be raised to take care of the unemployed.

• • •

Let us hope that trade and industry and everything else fulfill hopeful expectations and that neither bankers nor anyone else will consider it necessary to keep on bringing up wage cutting talk. It isn't conducive to strengthening confidence or to normal spending among the vitally important wage earning class.

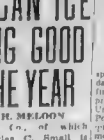
AMERICAN ICE SHOWING GOOD FOR THE YEAR

By FRANK H. MELOON

American Ice Co., of which Minneapolis Charles C. Small is president, today reports a good showing for the past year. The report makes it plain the ice man is not yet numbered among the passing Americans. Boston's leading wealth is invested in American Ice.



Charles C. Small

"Balance sheet" presidents tells us, reflects the membership of two new manufacturing plants acquired during the summer in the Boston district, which called for an immediate cash disbursement of $800,000, in addition to deferred payments. These plants were bought at depression low late in the year in contribute materially to the earnings of 1930, but should hereafter add substantials to the company's income from the ice cream territory."

• • •

American Ice Co.'s total sales during the 12 months were $20,980,-796.98 which compares with $20,-804,078.28 in 1929 and with $20,772,-413.17 in 1928. Net profits after federal taxes and depreciation were $3,260,210.86 which, after paying all charges, including preferred dividend requirements, were equal to $3.93 on the common shares. This compares with $4,641,243.13 or $4.22 a share in 1929 and with $2,802,-381.91 or $3.02 a share in 1928.

In connection with these figures it should be noted that cost of ice to the consumer is down all the way from the latter part of last year to the present time, with the result that the company's business in the early part of this year is running considerably ahead of the corresponding period of last year. Sales in January and February were exceptionally less favorable owing to the abnormally warm winter of 1930-31. As a result the earnings in 1929 was also affected by the fact that sales of surplus property, which in 1928 amounted to $1,732,000 were only $89,000 in 1930. Conditions which prevailed during the latter part of 1930 and the early part of 1931 are expected to be more favorable for real estate accounted for this change decline in net. Company's new business in the early part of this year is reported as running ahead of last year's and are appraised at about $2,000,000.

Discovery of a huge reservoir of natural gas in upstate New York may eventually revolutionize the gas industry in the cities of the New York city metropolis. If found commercially expedient, gas made in the Empire State will be carried in the big city in big trunk pipe lines as thence distributed to the apartment houses and factories. Engineers and search lines of the Consolidated Gas and Brooklyn Union Gas Company, interested in the enterprise would be large and the opportunities for profit to the gas corporations ample.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

When the initial selling wave spent its force in Wall Street today utilities were, as usual, the first to work their way to higher price ground. Consolidated Gas, United Corp., American & Foreign Power and American Water Works quickly pushed ahead a point or more.

Warner Bros. Has New Improvement

Warner Brothers scored another improvement when the stock moved up about 2 points from the low of the week. The banner of the amusement group dipped momentarily in the first hour, but recovered that lost ground later.

Bar Silver Eases From New High

Bar silver eased today ½ cent, a reflection of Wednesday's rich of 30¾ cents. The price of silver is an important factor for a number of issues and for that reason is closely watched. A year ago silver was above 41 cents.

New York Central Hits a New Low

While no great volume of liquidation in New York Central which yesterday slashed its annual dividend rate to $7 a share, dumped it to a new low for another new low. Baltimore & Ohio at the same time ran down with further talk of a dividend cut coming. Even selling in the rails soon dried up.

Calumet & Arizona Battle for Control

Two powerful managements of Calumet & Arizona are seeking to retain control and is aggressive in soliciting proxies. Regardless of the outcome at the annual meeting in April, it can be said the combined holdings of New York interests who have been accumulating the stock are several times larger than those of the existing management. Newmont interests are the largest holders.

Power Companies Electric Consumers

The power companies are among the largest consumers of products made by General Electric Co., Westinghouse and other electric companies and power companies continue to grow, even in years of general depression. The electric companies have reported a decline in business as have many other lines, but the outlook is considerably better than a year ago. That is one reason for better demand for electric stocks.

Rockefeller Policy of Selling Stocks

When Standard Oil of New Jersey was making new lows for the year in a newspaper reporter asked John D. Rockefeller if he could confirm the report that the Rockefellers were selling.

"All I can say," he replied, "is that I have yet to learn of a time when the Rockefellers sold stocks on a falling market."

Oil Industry Has Hope Still Left

Oil stocks have been making new lows for the year while many others have been recording new highs, but it is reasonable that the oil issues is destined to die.

Gasoline consumption has been increasing year after year. The oil industry is well managed. Standard Oil companies' Mellon companies, Texas Co. and others are all well directed as any enterprises in the world. It is largely because of that many farsighted traders have been accumulating good oil issues on firm belief that the industry will come back to make new records in earnings and dividend payments.

CLOSING IS EASY IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, March 12—The closing tone was easy in dealings today on the New York Stock Exchange. - Dividend actions were again a depressing factor, but it was moderate.

The market made some recoveries during the middle of the day, but the bull leaders were so cautious that bears rushed in to give a few specialties a poke or two in the late trading. The day's news included an encouraging employment report for February, but it was about in line with expectations. American International deferred action on its dividend.

BYERS BEAR TARGET.

Byers was a bear target, dropping 5 points. Westinghouse, Columbia Carbon, Auburn and Washington lost 3 or more. Lackawana dropped more than 8. New York Central declined 3 on a new low then recovered much of its loss. Atchison advanced 3¼ points.

A long list of important shares closed a point or so lower, including U. S. Steel, which sold at the lowest price of the month.

Others off a point or so included Radio, American Can, General Electric, North American, Chrysler, Motors and International Telphone.

A gain of 2 points in Consolidated Gas was lost, and similar advances in United Gas Improvement and Public Service of N. J. were modified. Transfers aggregated 2,500,000 shares.

DIVIDENDS MENACED

With further adverse dividend news hanging over the market, bullish efforts were distinctly lacking in enthusiasm, although the meagre volume of selling brought out by the New York Central recovery was encouraging. Further railroad dividend shaving is confidently expected.

Market letter writers are pointing to the similarity of the position of Baltimore & Ohio and that of New York Central. The former has failed to earn its $7 dividend.

A break in Lackawanna was clearly in response to the Central blood cut, for that earlier is guided by a conservative banking influence which is as important as for in New York Central Wednesday's house a annual report, which included none too cheerful comment on the volume of business, did not inspire confidence in its current dividend rate.

The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce a report of motor car output was encouraging, says it March should show a gain of 50 per cent over February, and that total sales seem to be keeping pace.

Month's Output of Autos Is Increased

New York, March 12 February Automobile production in United States and Canada totaled 230,364 cars and trucks, against 178,038 in January, according to estimate by National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Reports to the chamber from leading cities indicate improved retail demand has developed recently, with expectation that sales in March and April will show a substantial gain.

Trends Are Mixed in the Bond Market

New York, March 12—Trading in bonds was marked today by an irregular price trend and a curtailed volume. Railroad issues enjoyed the greatest group activity but the majority of the changes among them were declines. St. Louis-San Francisco 4½s of 1978 proved one of the most vulnerable liens with a loss of more than a point at one time.

Century Securities Forms Bond Trust

Century Securities Corp., Chicago, has formed first investment trust of bonds of a national character. About 40 per cent of portfolio will be utility bonds, 40 per cent railroad liens and 20 per cent industrial bonds, all listed on New York and Chicago stock exchanges and New York Curb.

Cotton Seed Crush Gain Is Announced

Washington, March 12 (AP)—Cotton seed crushed during the seven-month period August 1 to February 28, was reported today by the Census Bureau to have been 4,128,849 tons, compared with 4,000,093 for the same period a year ago, and cotton seed on hand at mills February 28 totaled 376,581 tons, compared with 525,317 a year ago.

Cotton Higher in New York Market

New York, March 12—Cotton futures today closed 6 to 9 points higher. March, 10.71; May, 10.93-94; July, 11.16; October, 11.48-49; December, 11.65; January, 11.75-74. Spot steady; middling, 10.80.

Grains Are Steady in Chicago Market

Chicago, March 12—Grains were steady to firm on the Chicago Board of Trade today. Closing prices for wheat were 3/8 lower to 1/8 higher; corn steady to 1/8 up; oats steady to 1/8 higher, and rye 3/8 to 1/2 better.

BUCK DESCRIBES HOW RHINO HORNS LURED ROBBERS

New White Hope Ban Norwegian Faller

CHARLES STONEHAM of the Giants refuses to pay Bill Terry, the greatest first baseman in the majors, either $25,000 for 1931, or $22,000 per year on a three-year contract, and announces that he has sounded all of the other major league clubs and none of them want him. That is slinging the cow's husband all over the pampas . . . Owner Bill Wrigley of the Cubs is only one magnate that would give double the sum to get the man that led both majors in batting, made the most hits, and led both leagues in putouts and assists. Rogers Hornsby's legs are buckling and Charley Grimm is so slow about that he's even slower than the crippled Hornsby. Wrigley and Hornsby have been burning the wires trying to purchase Jim Bottomley from the Cardinals. What do you think they would give to get Bill Terry? . . . Stoneham's stand against Terry is not good business. Remember baseball did not feel the depression that afflicted other commercial enterprises last year. The National League did the greatest business in the history of the body, playing to an aggregate of 4,500,000 spectators, 500,000 more than in 1929 and 1,150,000 more than 1928.

'Bring 'Em Back Alive' Author Tells About Paying for Prizes

Frank Buck told me yesterday of his brush with the bombastic Nepalese major. We learn more of the major today and how he was paid for the two rhino calves. Read on how transporting those rhinos presented a special problem that necessitated unceasing vigilence all the way to Calcutta.

CHAPTER 12

I went on into Raxaul with Lal, had a good rest at the railroad bungalow and was back shortly after daylight the second morning when the caravan again got under way. Owing to the almost impassable roads, it was a two-day trip to Raxaul.

On arriving here I expected to get the animals immediately loaded onto cars so that we could take them out on the late evening train, but when we pulled up before the railway station, the station-master informed us that the two flat cars which he had ordered sent up from Muzuffepur, the next divisional point, had not yet arrived. We therefore had to make camp here and wait until the next afternoon.

The major was beginning to grow impatient. In my anxiety over my precious cargo—those three or more tons of rhino flesh that made so much trouble for me—I had forgotten for almost a whole day to compliment the biggest chump in Nepal and he was becoming low in spirits.

I cheered him up considerably when I told him that next to Gen Shum Shere he was the finest man I had met in Asia, but even then he wasn't any too cheerful. He hinted that he was growing tired and would like to be on his way home.

MONEY PAID OVER.

Before he had a chance to ask me for the money again I told him I would write Shum Shere and tell how nobly the major had seen his task through to the end—how uncomplainingly he had aided me until the rhinos were on the cars and on their way to Calcutta. His grinned foolishly and accepted the situation.

The following afternoon the cars arrived from Muzuffepur. It is needless for me to say how tickled I was. The Gurkha soldiers were again called into service (the major barking out far more commands than were necessary and with a vehemence that the situation didn't call for), and the two rhinos, none the worse for their rough trip on the bullock carts, were set onto the cars.

This done, the major and I (with the decrepit old babu who acted as station-master and Lal as witnesses), entered the railway office where I opened my clothing to get out the silken sash that served as my wallet and counted out the 35,000 rupees I owed the Maharajah—tossing in an extra hundred rupees for the major to buy himself a sword against that day when he should become Field Marshal of Nepal.

The old babu's eyes almost popped out of his head as I counted out the money—more rupees than he had ever seen in all his life. The major wasn't any too calm either. His hand trembled with excitement as he signed the receipt.

PERILS EN ROUTE

And soon we were off. Lal and I perched up shelters of bourhs and leaves over the crates to keep out the burning rays of the sun, and the balance of the fodder which had been brought down by the elephants was loaded on the flat cars with the animals. These frontier trains are made up of both passenger and freight cars, so a first-class compartment was available for me. One of the Nepalese boys who had been attending the rhinos' ever since their capture agreed to accompany me to Calcutta to assist Lal in watching and caring for the animals en route, so when we left Raxaul I placed him on one of the cars and Lal on the other to guard the rhinos. Joheremi tending my needs in my compartment.

I had got my prizes to the rail head. It might have seemed that the worst of my troubles was over. But that would have been reckoning without a new danger that promptly developed—the Eastern lust for an approdisiac that was reputed to be borne on the heads of my rhinos.

To all Asiatics the horn of the rhinoceros has great restorative powers. A book could be written around the superstitions and

Ex-Lightweight Champion Dies

Waterbury, Ct., March 12 (INS)—Clarence D. O'Brien, former lightweight boxing champion of New England, died suddenly here today at the age of 78 years. He was a native of Newburgh, N. Y. and had lived here for 50 years. O'Brien has had fifteen over important boxing match in the state.

Dempsey Buys Tigers' Tickets for Fight

Sacramento, Cal., March 12—Members of the Detroit Tiger baseball team are strong for Jack Dempsey. The former heavyweight champion refereed a fight here recently and saw that all the Tigers had tickets. Now the players have learned that Jack paid for them.

Dempsey Is Done With Ring

Los Angeles, March 12 (U. P.)—Jack Dempsey has definitely announced the end of his ring career.

In a formal statement he said:

"I have definitely decided to engage in no more fights. I am 36 in June, three or four years past the accepted fighting prime. I have kept in fair shape and have tried to work myself up to intensive training. I could prepare for battle as good as I ever did, but I realize the chances my friends want me to go long. I also know that I could not be at my physical best.

"Therefore, you may say with finality that I am done fighting. That this I definite, final and conclusive and a decision reached after more than three years of indecision."

TERRY SIGNS CONTRACT

Memphis, Tenn., March 12 (AP)—Bill Terry holdout first baseman of the New York Giants, announced today he has come to terms with the club and will leave here Saturday to report at the San Antonio, Tex., training camp.

Leading National League hitter last year and one of the most stubborn holdouts this season, Terry said he had reached "a satisfactory agreement" with John J. McGraw, Giants manager, by long distance telephone today.

"Everything is O. K. now," he said, "I know and I agreed as to say what the terms are."

Last Tuesday Terry reduced demands for a three-year contract at $30,000 a year to one-year contract at $25,000. Charles E. Stoneham, Giants president, refused and stuck to his offer of $22,000, said to be a $7000 increase over Bill's salary last year.

Coach Will Control Crews

The suggestion of "Hank" Foster, former Harvard crewman, that Harvard should substitute a graduate rowing committee for its present coaching system, fell on deaf ears at Harvard today.

Efforts on the part of ex-Crimson oarsmen to have a part in coaching the Harvard varsity crew puts Harvard in most of the famous bugaboo of "crew committees" of former years and such an institution is the last thing Harvard desires right now.

These are the sentiments of Harvard athletic officials and undergraduates in general. William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, and Charles Whitehead coach of the varsity crew, declined to speak for publication.

Foster, a member of the Harvard crew of 1892, in an open letter to the Harvard Crimson, declared that the state of Harvard's crews had reached the point where something drastic should be done at once.

He proposed that Harvard should do away with the head crew coach and substitute for him a governing body of graduate crew men, who would meet weekly and give orders to the coaches.

Foster Would Abolish Title of "Captain"

Foster avoided the ghost of the old rowing committee idea by describing his board of governors as "large enough so that if any one had a personal interest in any member of the varsity crew, he could withdraw from the body."

The former Harvard sweep swinger also suggested that the title of "captain" should be abolished, "because the stroke is the most important member of the crew."

In 18 clauses, Foster outlined radical changes in training methods,

Did You Hear That

The Yankees of the League only are given eight entire days of training camp, the most of any of our rivals, but it would be difficult to buck a good racing whippet for less than $1500 . . . George West, noted Boston business man, is the tallest and heaviest of the harness racing drivers . . . The great greyhound Gamecock Duke of Wales, a bundle of nerves and fire when running, is as quiet and calm as an old St. Bernard most of the time . . . Jackie Keller, star of the Olympic games which has drawn John Cobb, former Brown hurdler, back into competition after a long stretch of inactivity . . . If Ira Hillman and Lawson Robertson ran a 200-yard three-legged race in 11 seconds, faster than the great majority of runners, barring good sprinters, can cover 100 . . . It costs the Yankees about $80,000 a year for scouting, there are five scouts with the Yanks, each of whom has a definite section of the U. S. to cover . . . Ed Don George, heavyweight wrestling champion doesn't smoke or drink, he has his meals at set hours of the day and tries to get a regular amount of sleep every night. George takes his business of tossing big fellows very seriously . . . AND

JUST 20 YEARS AGO TODAY

Cy Young, great pitcher, stated that the 1911 season would be his last in baseball. . . . Two colored baseball teams were playing on a plantation in Louisiana; going into the ninth the score was 18-18; one of the teams stars made a hit and was just reaching second when an enthusiastic fan shot the runner; a short while later in the inning another player slammed out a long hit, made third, raced home and was called safe on a close decision, whereupon another fan shot the umpire; then the game ended, with both teams claiming the victory.

AMATEUR BOXING IS ASSAILED AT HEARING

BILLS FILED TO BREAK UP 'RING'

Rigid control of amateur boxing, the protection of the lives and health of fighters and the breaking up of the so called "amateur boxing ring," were the chief features of the public hearing on boxing at the State House yesterday.

The hearing was held on the report of the special commission which investigated professional boxing and wrestling in the state, and on five bills introduced as a result of the commission's report.

The special commission, composed of Sen. Donald W. Nicholson of Wareham, Rep. William P. Corbett of Somerville, Abraham B. Cason of Boston, Raymond S. Wilkins of Winchester, and Paul H. Hines of Boston, submitted its final report about a month ago. Yesterday was the first day of the hearing.

1—Establishing the hours for amateur boxing exhibitions from noon to 15:30 p. m., and restricting a competitor to 10 rounds in 24 hours.

The fifth bill, filed by Representative Bernard Finkelstein for the establishment of a professional sports commission in the department of public safety, was not heard, and the hearing was adjourned until next Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Corbett Charges Small Group Controls Bouts

The hearing developed into a caustic battle between the supporters of the four bills and the advocates of the retention of the present system in conducting amateur fights.

"You must be a member of a certain group before you are allowed to referee or judge amateur bouts and there aren't any in into this select class with a hatchet."

As a remedy, Corbett offered a bill that would take the power of appointing referees and judges away from the New England Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, vesting it in a state boxing commission.

J. Frank Facey, registrar of the N. E. A. A. U., vigorously opposed the bills, denying all the abuses charged against the organization he represented.

Collegiate Golf Tourney for Chicago

Chicago, March 12 (AP)—The national intercollegiate golf championship will be held in the Middle West for the first time, June 23-27, at Olympia fields.

The tournament, inaugurated in 1897, never before has been held west of Pittsburgh, where it was played last year. Prof. Frank F. Moller of Notre Dame is president of the National Intercollegiate Golf Association.

The defeat in the semifinals of Mrs. George W. Wightman by Mrs. H. G. Simonds came as a surprise.

Princeton Wants Coach to Stay on Bench With Baseball Team

Princeton, N. J., March 12—The Daily Princetonian, undergraduate newspaper, in an editorial, advocates the return of the baseball coach to the bench.

Such a move "might be of greater advantage to the players than the present policy of the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League, which leaves the direction of the game solely in the hands of the team captains," the editorial said.

The opinion of the paper is that the policy, although theoretically deserving of the praise it called forth last spring when Princeton inaugurated the practice in the league, has failed to live up to expectations.

Passing the Puck

Until the Art Ross-Connie Smythe get-to-it at the Garden, the National Hockey League season had been a particularly tranquil one. All that is necessary now to insure a thrill producing finals is for the Bruins and the Maple Leafs to meet in the finals.

Due to the fact that the Maple Leafs will play two inferior teams, the Chicago Blackhawks and the winner of the play off of the third place clubs, they have a better chance of reaching the finals than any of the successful sextets.

As the local fans had not seen Toronto for three months, they were surprised at the strength displayed against the Bruins, whom they tied up in knots during most of the game.

Between now and the close of the regular season a pre view of the Chicago-Toronto series will be shown, for these teams will be a home and home series, which will afford an opportunity for comparison. Up to the present, the Leafs have found the Hawks easy prey but a money series may change conditions.

If the Maple Leafs step through Chicago and the third place play off winners, they will be a tough team to beat in the finals. Under playing conditions, there are no more rabid fans than the followers of the Leafs and with the Stanley Cup at stake, the Toronto Arena would be a bedlam, for Toronto has not glimpsed at that famous trophy since the St. Pat's came through in 1918.

The Toronto Hockey Club is building a new arena which will seat 15,000 and with the Maple Leafs playing either the Bruins or Les Canadiens in the finals, the unsold stock, which at present is $200,000, would be quickly disposed of as the world, and especially the financial, flocks to a winner.

Business Manager Frank Selke of the Maple Leafs is negotiating with Ottawa to transfer it... game from the Canadian capital to Toronto. As it is a Saturday night game, Ottawa would benefit, even on that 50-50 split basis.

Recently the governors of the National Hockey League voted to allot five per cent of the gross receipts of every game to the league, instead of the visiting club. A nice plum for the league but a blow to Ottawa and Philadelphia.

If it is necessary to have reached your 21st birthday to vote in Canada, Harvey Jackson, Alex Levinsky and Bob Gracie of the Maple Leafs have never cast a ballot, for they are only 20 years of age, while Charlie Conacher and Red Horner are but 21.

RED SOX MAY KEEP O'NEIL

Pensacola, Fla., March 12—Eddie O'Neil, a former South Boston high star? is showing well here in the workouts with the Red Sox, and it would cause no surprise if Manager Collins placed him on the pitching staff this season.

O'Neil has the makings of a good pitcher and it will not be long before he will rank with the best of them. He is 19 years old, weighs 175 pounds and stands 6 feet, 2 inches.

He can hit and can play any position in the outfield. With more weight and experience, the South Boston youngster should come through.

"Eddie O'Neil is a fine looking prospect," said Collins. "He is tall and rangy and has the stuff, but lacks the experience. With just a bit more seasoning, O'Neil will be ready for the major leagues.

"The South Boston boy puts me in mind of Dan MacFayden when he first broke into the big league. He is built along the lines of Danny. If O'Neil doesn't show somewhere, then I am badly fooled."

PAY HOMAGE TO HUGGINS

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 12 (AP)—Homage will be paid the late Miller Huggins, former manager of the New York Yankees, tomorrow, with dedication of Crescent Lake Park and the unveiling of a tablet erected to the memory of the wee pilot.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, E. S. Barnard, president of the National League, will attend the ceremonies in which Miss Myrtle Huggins, sister of Huggins, will unveil the tablet.

All members of the New York Yankees and Boston Braves will attend in a body.

MacFarlane, Cox 4 Up at Ninth Hole

Miami, Fla., March 12 (AP)—Willie MacFarlane shattered nine-hole traditions at the Miami Country Club course today as he marked a dazzling 30, six under par, to take a four-hole lead for himself and his partner, Wiffy Cox, in their 18-hole playoff with Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell for the championship of the international four-ball golf matches.

LUTZE PICKED OVER M'KAY

CALZA MEETS VASSELL IN SEMIFINAL

Complete Card at Arena Tonight

Al Morelli, Boston College, vs. Joe Cook, Australia.

Jack Wagner, Providence, vs. Jack Gaason, California.

By JACK CONWAY

Nick Lutze, one of the most colorful wrestlers to ever invade New England, is a favorite to win over Pat McKay, Irish champion, in the feature bout at Paul Bowser's show at the New Boston Arena tonight.

The match will be staged under American Association rules, best two falls out of three to win.

It is seldom that a wrestler has created as much interest as Lutze. Coming out of the West two months ago he scored three victories in a row and then collided with Ed George, world's champion. Nick had George beaten when he was tossed from the ring and suffered an injury. Lutze was later removed to the City Hospital where it was discovered that he had a slight concussion of the brain.

Lutze returned to the mat wars in the Hub last week when he scored a decisive victory over George Vassell, Greek heavyweight.

McKay also showed on the Arena card last week. He had the best of the rugged Jack Sherry in a stiff ring contest.

McKay is a finished grappler. He also has the flash and color which appeals to the crowd.

If McKay is able to dispose of Lutze, he will be in line for bouts with the world's leading heavyweights.

Lutze, on the other hand, is shooting for a return contest with George. He believes he will defeat Ed if given the opportunity.

Calza and Vassell in the Semifinal

George Calza, who claims the Italian heavyweight championship, and George Vassell, Greek heavyweight, will collide in the semifinal which will have a 45-minute limit.

Calza was formerly one of the best mat cards to show in Boston. He recently returned from Italy and says he is once more in fine condition. He declares he has completely recovered from the injury to his leg.

Jack Wagner of Providence will clash with Jack Gaason of California, John Spellman will oppose Leo Hyatt, the Newark Bulldog. Will have Frank Dellemani as an opponent in another match.

LONDOS COMES HERE TODAY

Londos has won five matches during the past week and is confident he will also add Garibaldi to his list of victims.

There are several men on the card who are eager to land a match here with Londos, notably Ray Steele, the Californian who meets Matros Kirilenko, Russian champion, in the Garden semifinal and Earl McCready, who makes his bow here against Jack Washburn of California.

Rudy Dusek who opposes Floyd Marshall of California and Paul Jones and Dick Daviscourt who also meet at the Garden, are three wrestlers who have lost close matches to Londos recently.

Fights Last Night

By International News Service.

At San Francisco—Gilbert Actis, San Francisco welterweight, outpointed Theo Copley, Sausalito, Cal., 10; Joe Roche, San Francisco middleweight, outpointed Charley White, San Francisco 10).

WRESTLING RESULTS

At New York—Ed (Strangler) Lewis, Boston, defeated Pat McGill, Ireland. George Zaryoff won from Tony Catalfo, Italy. Phil Lotz won from Tex Angelo, de-feated Abe Kaplan, New York. Al Mayo, Boston, defeated Joe Lomuna, Worcester, Mass. Jack Young, Canada, won from Jim Cargaldi, Paterson, N. J. Andy Randeo, Brooklyn, defeated Jean Silvey, Canada. Otto Huthaniey, Finland, defeated Rex Smith, Flint, Mich. Stanley Stasiak, Cambridge, Mass., won from John Sullivan, Boston. Jim Londos, recognized as New York as champion, defeated Taro Miyake, Japan. Sergi Kalmenoff, Siberia, defeated Pipp Wilson, New York. Ruby Dusek, Omaha, won from Vasiliy Zebrowski, Russia. Gino Garibaldi, Italy, defeated George Kragos, Greece.

Pals Once But What Now?

JIM LONDOS PAUL BOWSER

JIM LONDOS and PAUL BOWSER once were the best of pals. Now they head the two great wrestling trusts. BOWSER leads the Bowser-Sandow combine, which controls Ed George, hailed as world's champion in this neck of the woods. LONDOS is the real head and financial backer of the Curley-Fabiani combine and himself is billed as world's champion in New York. Here you see LONDOS taking a wrist and arm lock on BOWSER in the old days. Now each is trying for a strangle hold. Neither so far has obtained it. Bowser's troupe performs in the Arena tonight. Londos tackles Gino Garibaldi in the Garden tomorrow night.

Bring 'Em Back Alive

By Frank Buck with Edward Anthony

myths that abound in Asia about the miraculous rejuvenating properties of this substance.

This Chinese will cross the Himalayas to the Nepalese border for rhino horn, paying thousand- of rupees for a small bud of the emerald. In China this is disposed of at fancy prices to the wealthy.

CAUSE FOR MURDER

One of the bloodiest murders that ever took place in China had for its motive a shipment of rhino horn, among the biggest ever gathered together. The shipment changed hands three times, two dealers perishing in the struggle for possession. The rich Chinaman who financed the original expedition to the edge of Nepal for this big consignment of the wonder-working restorative eventually received the goods that, theoretically, made him the richest man in China; but he was made to pay through the nose by the bandits who eventually made delivery—the price that he paid amounting to a small fortune in the Orient.

The Chinese method of using rhino horn is to dry it thoroughly and grind it into powder, which is then mixed with a liquid and taken internally.

The Malays look upon rhino horn more as a charm than as a medicine, and no Malay will ever overlook an opportunity to rub his hand over a rhino horn, and if he is so fortunate as to have a small piece to carry in his pocket, the god of luck will never forsake him.

The Hindu view is much like the Chinese. Only in the method of using it does he differ. Instead of powdering and drinking it, the Hindu rubs on a small piece of the magic restorative

CASE WATCH KEPT

The horns of my young rhinos were just beginning to grow out, and it behooved me to keep a close watch on them, especially when our train stopped at stations along the way; so I was with some reluctance and much cautioning that I left Lal and the Nepalese boy in charge of the two cars and went to my compartment to wash and rest.

I got out at almost every station along the way and assisted the two boys, standing guard over the animals with a good heavy walking stick, which I found it necessary to use on several occasions. Wherever there is a railroad station in India there are many native idlers and loiterers—shiftless Hindus whose chief emotion seems to be curiosity about the next train.

These idlers would crowd around at every stop we made, some of the bolder ones making daring efforts to snip off pieces of the soft horn of my calves. I wielded my cane, bringing a lump to more than one thieving Hindu head, and Lal and the Nepalese boy wielded away with long sticks, yet we had our hands full; and in spite of all our precautions, on the second morning out of Lahore I found a hole at least an inch square and almost two inches deep gouged out of the under young horn of one of the rhinos. Some Hindu, avid for rejuvenation, had carved himself a piece of rhino big enough to make a few dozen little buttons.

The incident seems unimportant at this writing, but I don't mind saying that I was furious when I discovered what had happened to the horn of one of my rhinos. I immediately questioned Lal and the Nepalese boy, but my investigation yielded nothing. Some Hindu had been too quick for them.

BOAT CHARTERED

At Ahmal Gola, on the north bank of the Ganges river, the Bengal and Northwestern Railway terminates. On arriving here I chartered a boat. I sent Lal and Jobeiheim scouting about for coolies while I entered into negotiations with several Hindu owners of the big clumsy sail boats that ply about this busy section of the Ganges. I succeeded in getting these piratical navigators wrought up against one another to such an extent in their competitive bidding for my cargo that I managed to get the rhinos carried to Mokameghat at a reasonable figure.

I had telegraphed from Muzafferpur to the station-master at Mokameghat, requesting that two cars be ready on my arrival there, but we had been so long in arranging for the boat and getting across the Ganges that the cars which had been held for me were used for some other purpose and it was late that night before I was able to get the animals loaned again and headed for Calcutta.

I needn't tell you how happy I was when we finally arrived in Calcutta. I tried to store the animals in a friend's garage in Ballygunge, a suburb of Calcutta, but the building proved too small. It then suggested that I deposit the cages on his front lawn, which I did. The comparative seclusion of the place minimized the problem of driving off natives. Only a few of the bolder natives invaded the privacy of that lawn and they were easily chased away.

Bruin Cubs Clash with Indians

School Court Tourney on Today

Haverhill and New Bedford high school basketball teams battle this afternoon in the opening game of the annual M. I. T. Eastern Massachusetts court tournament on the Tech hangar gym court.

The first clash of the tournament brings together two of the strongest teams in the tourney. Each team has lost one game. New Bedford won 10 and Haverhill won 15.

The second game of the day has Fitchburg high facing the light but fast Salem five. Glenn O'Brien of Salem lads, led by Johnny Cullen, defeated the powerful Haverhill team in the only loss sustained by the latter crew.

At 7:30 p. m., Brockton plays Lynn English. The fourth fray of the day is billed to start at 8:30 with Medford high and Ridge Tech in action.

JOHNSTON AND FUGAZY MERGE

New York, March 12 (US)—Exclusive rights for the promotion of boxing matches at Ebbets Field for the season of 1931 were leased to a corporation consisting of James J. Johnston and Humbert J. Fugazy.

The aggrement was signed by Pres. Frank York of the Brooklyn Baseball Club after Fugazy and Johnston had convinced him that they not only have Primo Carnera and Jack Sharkey under contract, but that they have five or six equally attractive matches practically arranged.

Among them is a match between Lew Harvey, who is managed by Johnston, and Mickey Walker, the middleweight champion.

Fuzzy plans to appear before the boxing commission in the near future, and ask for the reinstatement of Carnera. The Italian giant has been under suspension in this state since last June as the result of a peculiar contest at Oakland, Cal.

R. I. Champions in Title Tourney

Iowa Has Confidence of Conference Teams

Chicago, March 12 (INS)—Assured that University of Iowa authorities again have the complete confidence of the Western Conference, the special legislative committee investigating university affairs moved back to Des Moines today.

Maj. John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner for the conference, told the investigators at the closing session yesterday that Coach complaints which brought Iowa's severance from the conference two years ago have been rectified.

Loughran Faces 2 Opponents Tomorrow

New York, March 12 (INS)—Tommy Loughran will have two men to whip in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night if Vincent Ier, has lost another round in his bout to keep from paying Mrs. Jack Kearns $300 a month temporary alimony.

Appellate Otto Kerner yesterday denied a motion by Kearns' attorney to vacate the alimony order, but gave 45 days in which to appeal the decision. Kearns has a suit for annulment pending in circuit court and has made no alimony payments since the order was issued last summer.

Springfield Spares—Carrigan, Benson, Starr, G. Grant, Saunders, Wilson.

By BILL GRIMES

After a one-week layoff, the Bruin Cubs will resume their battle for third place and the Canadian-American League play offs against the Springfield Indians tonight at the Boston Garden.

With four games to play against three of the Arrows, the Cubs are four points up on the Philadelphia team. After the game with the Indians tonight, the Cubs play a home and home series with the Rhode Island Reds and then wind up the season in New Haven, one week from Sunday.

The Arrows have a game with the New Haven Eagles to play and two with Springfield and if they lose one game they will be eliminated by a tie or a victory by the Cubs.

Unless Pres. Frank Calder nullifies the agreement between the Bruin Cubs and the Toronto Maple Leafs, Benny Grant will finish out the season with the Cubs. After a conference with Manager Art Ross of the Bruins, Connie Symthe of Toronto declared that he would recall Grant, regardless of any agreement, as to the terms under which Grant was to have been sent back to his owners.

Bruin Cubs Need Goalie Grant Badly

To lose Grant would ruin the Cubs, for the Cub goalie has been the outstanding star of the Powers team.

Although the Cubs have not been in competition for a week, they have been practising daily and with the exception of Jack Pratt, are all in tip-top condition. Pratt will start on the defense tonight but it is doubtful if he will be able to stand the pace and if he does, a foregone conclusion that he will not be up to his usual standard.

Pratt's ankle is still very lame and au weak that it is impossible for him to turn or start quickly. Pratt is badly needed on the Cub defense but Manager Eddie Powers will relieve him as soon as he shows any ill effects, regardless of the outcome of the game.

Realizing that a victory over Springfield will put them in line for playoff money, the Cubs will be at their best tonight. The Klein-Burke-Boyd line now ranks with any in the Can.-Am. League and much is expected of them until the championship has been decided. As the Cubs lack the veteran forward replacements, the first string players will be called upon to carry most of the load.

Denies Request of Jack Kearns

Chicago, March 12 (AP)—Jack Kearns, manager of the world middleweight champion, Mickey Walker, has lost another round in his bout to keep from paying Mrs. Jack Kearns $300 a month temporary alimony.

Appellate Otto Kerner yesterday denied a motion by Kearns' attorney to vacate the alimony order, but gave 45 days in which to appeal the decision. Kearns has a suit for annulment pending in circuit court and has made no alimony payments since the order was issued last summer.

Oldest Resident of Marlboro Dies

Marlboro, March 12—Joseph Aselin, 92 years old, Marlboro's oldest resident, died shortly after 2 o'clock this morning at his home, 6 Cross st. after a short illness.

Coming here from Canada when a youth Mr. Aselin had made his home in Marlboro all his life. He was a shoemaker, but retired several years ago.

He is survived by three sons and a daughter.

Potato Acreage to Be Increased

The Agricultural Department has found combined commercial early-potato plantings in 19 states expected to total 350,380 acres, compared with 334,380 last year and a previous five-year average of 329,144.

AT THE LISTENING POST

POPULARITY is assumed to be short-lived, where radio stars are concerned. It is more or less conceded that the fickle public tires of not any personality on the air. Such theory is not altogether true, at least certainly not as applied to many favorites. Stage and screen celebrities enjoy a distinct advantage over those who entertain through the ether waves. The former are enabled to offer beauteous features, carefully rehearsed gestures and finely formed bodies. Radio folks have only a voice with which to win and hold friends. That being true, praise is due such artists as Seth Parker, Billy Jones and Ernie Hare, The Real Folks, Rudy Vallee, Phil Cook and many others. Broadcasting two or three years, they still maintain interest, prestige and enthusiasm among listeners. Then there remains Graham McNamee, Phillips Carlin, Norman Brokenshire and John S. Young as examples of the so called "old time" announcers that hold their own.

* * *

DEPRESSION AND THE business cycle forms the basis of a broadcast to be given by Frank C. Ayres, executive secretary of The Business Historical Society. A comparison will be made involving the present commercial slump and that of 1840 and 1894. Mr. Ayres is an expert qualified in every way to analyze such situations. An optimist as well, in so far as Friday, the day he will be heard, happens to be the 13th. (WBZA at 12:05 p. m.).

ONE MORE of the WBZA dramatic features designed as a matinee of the air for women, is scheduled for tomorrow at 3:15. Entitled "Millie Goes Home," the feature is offered as an adaptation of the screen play, "Millie," now current at the R. K. O. Theater in Boston.

NAMES IS NAMES: Phil Cook is said to be "just naturally prepping things in the kitchen of his home."

MONEY HAS COME to radio performers in considerably larger bits than quite a few of them ever forgot. Mention of the Ks-Ks-Ks-cast, under Raymond Knight, are making out income tax reports for what they call the "Eternal Revenue Department."

TONIGHT is the night when the wrestlers (and Gerry Harrison) furnish thrills for listeners (WLEX at 9:30). There are four matches scheduled—on the level! N. F. T.

Features on the Air

FOR THOSE wrestling fans who can't attend the Arena show tonight, Gerry Harrison will be on hand to bring listeners a hold by hold description of the Lutze-McKay affair through WLEX at 9:30. Speaking of such, a "hold-by-hold" description always sets us a-thinking. . . . Is there any sporting event which can't be "blow-by-blow-ed," "hold-by-hold-ed," "stroke-by-stroke-ed," and so forth? The WBZA at 9:30 program of tonight has inaugurated something which may not set the radio world afire, but which is focusing the attention of the dial twisters. Last week an all-Gershwin program was offered and tonight a Rodgers and Hart symposium. . . . In the past few weeks Rudy Vallee has given us a host of new features. The latest is a chemistry series, heard tonight at 7:45. . . . Rudy Vallee has been taking unto his program of late, an irresistable set of entertainers. Tonight, Walter Scanlan, Alma Kruger, "The Varsity Drag Girl," will do mike duty.

* * *

HOW TO CROWD is on an hour's broadcast such an imposing list of names selected from all heard over WNAC at 1:30 tomorrow at the New York Hotel Astor luncheon of the Drama Study Club is a problem worthy of an Einstein's reflection. To attempt to list the speakers would involve the printing of a pamphlet. Here are a few names that eyes and have picked at random in an attempt to attenuate the list.

Leading the parade to the microphone will be the famous playwrights and authors, Donald Ogden Stewart and Rachel Crothers. Others are Judith Anderson, Beatrice Lillie, Ginger Rogers, Katherine Cornell, Helen Menken, Maurice Chevalier, Helen Hayes, Guy Lombardo, Gertrude Lawrence, Irene Bordoni, David Warfield, Gertrude Ederle, Frances Marie, Billie Burke, June Walker, Harry Hershfield, Karl Kitchen, Jennie Hurst, Arthur Hopkins and Eva La Gallienne. Each of these and others will be limited to seven minutes of fame.

From WNAC at 6 tonight Helen Hayes, star of "Petticoat Influence," now showing in Boston, will be subject to an interview . . . in a N. Y. radio interview Miss Hayes said naughty things this didn't like, but tonight she promises to keep to conservative script . . . It is whispered that a number of theatrical stars will be interviewed regularly on WNAC . . . Through WLEX at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow exercises attending the observance of Founder's Day by the faculty and students at Boston U. will be broadcast. A musical program will surround the address by President Marsh. M. G. M.

First Bonus Loans Exceed Estimates

A much larger number of World War veterans are applying for first loans under the new relief bill than was anticipated by officials, according to Col. Blake of the Veterans' Bureau.

From present indications, he stated, the number of veterans who will apply for loans under the new measure will exceed 65,000. To cover this large number of applicants, he stated, the Boston bureau will have to disburse $25,000,000 or more.

Port of Boston News

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Reporting rough weather, steamers from foreign ports coming into the port of Boston showed evidences of the battle with the elements.

With Sumner Willis, an American seaman aboard as a workaway having worked his way on the voyage, the West Calumin, American Republics came in here after a passage from Buenos Aires, Montevideo and Santos. She brought 13,745 bags of coffee for this port, 2000 tons of wool hides, quantity of quebracho and other merchandise.

Mexico City has attracted Mrs Florence La Galles and Mrs. Ida A. Frost of Boston. They will sail today on the Ward Liner Cuzamba which leaves for Havana, Progreso, Vera Cruz and Mexico City.

WIRELESS REPORTS

Wireless reports received by owners and agents of two freighters bound for Boston show that they will arrive here today. The Eastern Crown coming from Newport News notified C. H. Sprague & Sons, of Broad st., that she was off Five Fathome Lightship on the last lap of her trip from Newport News. She will be docked at Lewson's Power Station, South Boston. The Penobscot also notified C. H. Sprague & Sons that she will arrive tomorrow. She will dock at Lively pool wharf.

DENEHY SAFE

With the Coast Guard Cutter Tampa rushing to her aid, word was received at the Eastern Division Headquarters of the Coast Guard in the Customs House that the Boston fish dragger Francis J. Denehy, reported disabled, was all right. Capt. Jack Hayes of the trawler Sea Hawk came across the dragger Denehy with her fish tangled in her propeller rendering her helpless. Capt. Hayes radioed for assistance for the Denehy. The crew cleared the weed and she is no longer in need of aid. She is expected here today.

SUFFERED 15 YEARS
Mr. Wm. A. Stevens, 45 Charlesgate East, Boston, Mass., Says:—"I suffered for 15 years with stomach trouble. I took many kinds of medicine and employed three doctors without obtaining any permanent results. A neighbor told me that Dr. Walsh had been very successful in such cases and advised me to consult Dr. Walsh. I followed his advice and as the result of Dr. Walsh's treatment I have gained 20 pounds in weight and am now enjoying perfect health. This unsolicited testimonial and recital troubles." Signed, Wm. A. Stevens.

All Windows, or None?

Architects Differ

Chicago architects are debating whether buildings of the future will be all windows or completely windowless. Frank Lloyd Wright, designer of the Imperial Hotel in Tokio and other famous structures, thinks the former. The advantages, he points out, are numerous. Dwellers will get plenty of health-giving sunlight, and when privacy is desired they can always pull down the shades.

But, on the other hand, listen to G. E. Pfister, director of the Midwestern Engineering and Power Exposition:

"The first windowless buildings are now being constructed. Ventilation is more easily controlled in this type of structure, and purer and better air can be supplied. Lighting is made uniform and the benefits of sunlight can be obtained by the use of ultra-violet ray lamps. Furnaces can be largely eliminated also, since a single heating plant can supply an area a mile square. No city need have a pall of smoke any longer."

All human beings, the psychologists say, are extroverts or introverts. The extroverts like to look at other people, the introverts prefer to look at themselves. The glass house should appeal to the extroverts as strongly as a windowless building to the introverts. And the rents will be equally high in both. Take your choice.

Be Dumb, Girls

If Possible

Advice to women from Dr. Abdul M. Shad, noted British psychologist:

"If you want to make a hit with men, be dumb."

Dr. Shad, elaborating the profound thought, says:

"I am often asked if a man can love a brainy woman. I reply in a great psychoanalyst's words, 'Women who think are devils to live with.' Why? Because the modern intellectual woman demands a higher grade of mate than has yet appeared on this earth.

"She has struggled up to her own pedestal with great difficulty. She may tumble down (leaving her brains behind) and seize her victim. She takes him home and feeds him, but soon he goes to the woman who makes him a strong drink and tells him he is wonderful. And back to her lonely pedestal creeps the intellectual woman."

Well, possibly; but you might think that a good deal depended on the man.

As Mr. Kipling said, through one of his characters, "The stupidest woman can handle a clever man, but only a very clever woman can handle a fool."

There may be a field for the woman with brains yet.

Listen, World! :: Take Care

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Don't Scorn One-Track Minds

DON'T SPEAK lightly of "one-track minds"—

Don't conclude that they're vague, weak affairs, not be taken seriously—

Respect them and look out for them. They are always powerful—they are sometimes extremely dangerous. And you lay yourself open to their danger if you underestimate them.

Elsie Robinson

"But they have only one idea," you say, proud of your many-idea intellect.

That is exactly why they are powerful. They HAVE only one idea—but they back that one idea with all they have. The man with one idea doesn't scatter his forces. He concentrates on one issue and keeps everlastingly at it. His attack may seem trivial but he never stops—and he wears his opponent away by that very persistence. He has it all over the chap with a dozen irons in the fire . . . who gives but a fraction of his energy to each project.

And the one-track mind is often dangerous, because it never sees, or tries to see, the other fellow's side of the picture. It has only one desire and if you get in the way of that desire, that's YOUR bad luck. For the one-track mind, as a general rule, has no more regard for your rights than a mad dog.

IT HAPPENS BECAUSE THE BIG NATURE DOESN'T TAKE THE LITTLE NATURE SERIOUSLY.

It happens because the big nature thinks the tiny demands, the querulous complaints, "don't really matter."

"Anything for peace," says the big nature, smiling amiably. "After all, it takes so little to make them happy—I'd be a brute to refuse when I have so much—when I'm so strong—"

So the ignoble compromises and concessions begin . . . partly out of pity . . . partly out of good natured condescension.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Aren't Women Slaves?

"WHITHER AWAY?" called Mrs. Divot, as Mrs. Green stopped her little blue car and motioned her to jump in.

* * *

"To the beauty parlor for a facial—like a dutiful wife," said Mrs. Green. "From there, to my fencing and dancing lessons; thence to Madame Fleur's for fitting; and then, lickety split, to the station to meet John at the 6:15. Aren't we women 'slaves'?"

* * *

"If you were a dutiful wife and a 'slave,'" laughed Mrs. Divot, "you'd be at home baking a cake or darning John's socks."

* * *

"Where have you been for the last twenty years?" demanded Mrs. Green. "Darning and baking were luxuries of the old-fashioned wife. The wife-job, in these days, was a cinch. A woman had to be only a man's cook and his consolation. Now she has to be his 'inspiration' his chauffeur, his bridge-partner, his mental companion, and a fashion-plate, besides.

* * *

"You don't suppose that any woman actually ENJOYS being flayed, stapled, baked, parboiled and run through a wringer at a beauty-shop, do you? But men demand BEAUTY, these days. And being beautiful is harder than being good! It's a dog's life!

"The old-fashioned wife could loll around after the dishes were washed and munch chocolates and grow fat, comfortably. She could wear her corsets until the steel broke and hurt her, greet her husband in a Mother Hubbard and never bother about the runs in her lisle-thread stockings.

* * *

"In those days a man took his last look at his wife—and any other woman—right at the altar. After that, she might have blackened her teeth and shaved her head, and he would scarcely have noticed it. But now he doesn't close his eyes when he puts on the wedding-ring. He keeps them WIDE OPEN—and his wife has to do some hustling to hold her own with all the young, beautiful, snappy, efficient women he sees around him.

* * *

"Being a wife, these days, is a combination of art, science, drudgery, and legerdemain. You can't hold a husband with pink baby-ribbon and waffle-paste any more. You've got to hold him with both hands, a safety-clutch and sleight-of-hand. And, even then, if you don't hold onto your looks, he may do a Houdini—and get loose."

* * *

"In short," rejoined Mrs. Divot, "the modern woman's 'freedom' is just a life-sentence at hard labor!"

AND HE REALLY THINKS THAT THEY DO!

It wants to grab FOR ITS OWN ENRICHMENT and at the EXPENSE OF THE PEOPLE all the God-given natural resources that abound in the land.

It seeks from the Federal Power Commission, THAT IT CONTROLS, a restriction-free power site on the New River, near Radford, Va.

The Federal Government has spent $115,000 and the State of Virginia $50,000 to make the New River navigable.

The Federal Government has NO jurisdiction over non-navigable streams. Virginia has relinquished all jurisdiction in the case.

So the legal luminaries of the Power Trust want the Power Commission to rule that the New River is "non-navigable."

If it should, the Federal Government would have NO CONTROL over the BOOKS, RATES or OPERATIONS of the Power Trust subsidiary operating the power plant.

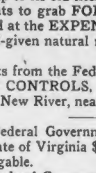
This bold attempt to break down the Federal Water Power act is only a forerunner of future Power Trust GRABS ON THE PUBLIC DOMAIN, if the trust is successful.

Like Last Act of Thriller

By WINIFRED BLACK

A Melodrama in Real Life

HERE'S A letter that will make you feel as if you were sitting in the best seat in a fine theater and seeing the last act of a thrilling play.



Winifred Black

The act where the hero comes home from war, famine, shipwreck, betrayal by false friends, unjust imprisonment, and all the rest of the things that can happen to a hero in a good, old-fashioned melodrama—and gets there just in time to save the heroine from the villain, pay the mortgage on the old home, give his faithful servant a half interest in a gold mine, marry the heroine himself, and send you home feeling as if it was a very nice comfortable world to live in after all.

Read the letter—and see.

Dear Winifred Black,

In 1927, from March to May, I was prospecting for oil in the hills, sixty-five miles north of Santa Barbara. After drinking some water I became seriously ill and was unable to get help of any kind. I was lost for fifty-two days when some cowboys rescued me. My weight went down from one hundred and ninety pounds to one hundred and ten, but having a good constitution I was able to go to work by August.

You wrote about me in your column in 1928 and said, in part, that if I had struck oil I would have gotten me a wife and automobile and left the U. S. A. for Paris. Well, I struck oil on Jan. 14, 1931.

The well came in with a hundred thousand barrels every twenty-four hours. I own a large interest in it, but I am still in sunny California and have no prospect of a wife. I may get me a limousine or a baby car, and as for the wife, I seem to get along very well without one. However, I am a prospector and you never can tell what a prospector will do. That is why I kept on looking for oil, and who knows, I might marry a princess and live happily ever after!

Sincerely yours,
J. W. SAFERIGHT.

There now, what do you think of that?

And the best part about the whole business is, that it is absolutely the plain, everyday truth.

Yes, I remember the man who was lost in the desert for fifty-two days. And I remember the gay courage with which he greeted the cowboys who found him, almost dead, in a clump of desert bushes.

Well, stranger, I wish you luck then, and I wish you luck now.

Luck and lots of it, and that means a good, warm-hearted, good-looking, intelligent wife who will know enough to appreciate your good, old-fashioned American grit, and the intelligence and determination that appear to go with it.

Saferight—that sounds English. Did you come from Devonshire, by any chance, where the men grow tall, and the women fair?

New York Day by Day

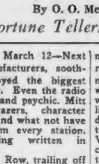
Fortune Tellers Prosperous

NEW YORK, March 12—Next to red ink manufacturers, soothsayers have enjoyed the biggest profits of the year. Even the radio has gone palmist and psychic. Mitt readers, star gazers, character analysts, swamis and what not have been blatting from every station. Destiny is being written in planchette.

Fortune Telling Row, trailing off Columbus Circle, has never had such a puff of prosperity. Any world cataclysm results in scurrying to the seers. Wall Street is especially sensitive to such prophets. Many now have offices in the down town canyons.



There has been a remarkable gush of interest in numerology. In times of stress civilization shows it has progressed very little from ancient necromancy. Witches are no longer touched off in flames but fantastic potions are still being swallowed. Luck charms are not worn only by voodoo followers. They are frequently worn by men and women of cultural attainments. With prosperity people let go of superstition but in adversity they grasp for any straw like the proverbial drowning man.

The minute disaster comes many sensible men and women are attracted by the mysticisms of the savage. After the world war a big list of spirit salons opened. Frantic parents and other relatives sought "messages" from those who had "gone over."

The radio added an impulse to the search for the unknowable. It seemed to presage many further links in communicating beyond the veil. In the past year the new mental experimentalist has had no trouble in collecting a group of the wide-eyed.

Stenographers are keen for palmistry and sundry parlor conjurors. Such abracadabra offers an outlet for the pent-up yearning for grandiose romantic. It is a soporific that deadens many to the stark realities.

Few newspapers have turned out so many bang-up writers as the Kansas City Star. It has been the generating ground for such accomplished writers as Homer Croy, Courtney Ryley Cooper, Bide Dudley, George T. Bye, Wesley Stout, Charles Phelps Cushing, Jerome Beatty, Fatty Lewis, Russell Crouse and Brock Pemberton.

In these days not many newspaper writers gather their own material. Instead a "leg man" collects and hustles it via telephone. Someone describes the telephone as the newspaper's automatic gun that rakes an entire district in a few minutes. Thus a writer knows only what filters over the whispering wires. He does not rub elbows with life. He gets a closeup of the murdered gangster from a tabloid picture and sees the glamorous Mrs. Vanaster through the eyes of the society reporter. He does not acquire the "feel" of things as did the old time reporter.

I had need of the services of a chiropodist today. What we once knew as a corn doctor is no longer even a chiropodist. At least asking for a chiropodist they sent a podiatrist with an "M. CP." after his name. He came sporting chamois gloves, a silver handled walking stick and a gardenia. If there had been a graceful way of backing out I would. He was too grand. There isn't much to do for worn out feet anyway.

Dancers are the most frequent patrons of pedicure parlors. They fear the slightest foot trouble. One of the most famous of the aesthetic dancers—a sprite whose body had the graceful, wavering outline of a jinn rising from its bottle—had to give up her career on account of a bunion.

I was once for a brief period press agent for one of the leaping-for-buttercup dancers who invariably fluttered into a swoon at the end of the dance. When on the stage she proved an eerie enchantress who seemed to float in mid-air and then ricocheted on tip-toe and skim like a gull. (Do you mind if I run into the other room and run through this descriptive stuff to my wife?) Anyway, she seemed to me some fragile flower, and scarcely of this world. My disillusionment was as usual. The ethereal lady, I learned, chewed snuff.

WITH GASOLINE dropping to 5 cents a gallon in Los Angeles we have the modern version of the old saw, "If wishes were horses beggars could ride."

THE PROGRESSIVES are going to eliminate prohibition from their gabfest, and the Republican national committee puts a gag on all wet and dry palaver, thus proving that the donkey rushes in, where the moose and the elephant fear to tread.

How Power Trust Hides the Facts

By Bainbridge Colby

IN HIS recent address before the Democratic National Committee in Washington, Chairman John J. Raskob, in his plea for a greater immunity for big business, said:

"If a utility company is charging fifteen cents a kilowatt for current that it should supply at ten cents or twelve cents, or is in any other way looting the public through exploiting the franchise they enjoy at the hands of society, then SOCIETY SHOULD DEAL WITH THAT PARTICULAR CASE, punish the offenders and right the wrong and not attack the industry as a whole."

BAINBRIDGE COLBY.

This is the extent to which Mr. Raskob refers to the power issue which many influential members of his party consider the leading economic issue before the country.

Is it Mr. Raskob's view that the problem of the holding company in the electric utilities field is merely a question of sporadic irregularities—"the crookedness of a few companies"—to use the words of his speech?

If so, he is COMPLETELY IN ERROR.

The Power issue may be said to arise from, and to consist in the claim by the holding companies in general that they are not utility companies, although owning, controlling and directing the operation of utilities; that for this reason they are beyond the reach of regulation by the states, and for the further reason, that the state cannot inquire into the management of a corporation, not situated or doing business within its borders.

Defying state regulation, they also bid defiance to federal regulation as well, on the ground that Congress has no power over holding company operations.

Their position as outlined before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce is:

1. Ownership of stock in companies in other states is not interstate commerce and does not subject the owner to legislation or investigation as engaged in interstate commerce.

2. The issuance of bonds or stocks by a company is not interstate commerce, and does not subject such corporation to investigation or legislation.

3. The interstate sale of stocks and bonds does not subject the corporation to investigation and legislation as to its relations WITH FINANCIAL OR CONSTRUCTION INSTITUTIONS OR CONCERNS, and DOES NOT SUBJECT SUCH CONCERNS TO INVESTIGATION.

The shocking insensibility to the public interest, reflected in such an attitude, is better understood if considered in connection with the actual set-up of a typical company.

The Middle West Utilities Company, an important holding company, serves this purpose well. It has TWELVE PRINCIPAL SUBSIDIARIES. THESE SUBSIDIARY COMPANIES ARE IN TURN HOLDING COMPANIES FOR OTHER HOLDING COMPANIES, WHICH IN TURN OWN AND CONTROL VARIOUS OPERATING UNITS.

The latter company, although a subsidiary of the Middle West Company, is a holding company for the following five companies—Michigan Electric Power Company, National Public Service Corporation, New England Public Service Company, Ohio Electric Power Company and Penn Central Light & Power Company.

Of the group just mentioned, THE NATIONAL PUBLIC SERVICE CORPORATION—a subsidiary of a subsidiary, is a holding company as well, owning the Jersey Central Power & Light Company, Municipal Service Company and SEABOARD PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY.

The subsidiary of the subsidiary of the subsidiary—the SEABOARD PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY, turns up as a HOLDING COMPANY for the Eastern Shore Public Service Company, Florida Power Corporation, Georgia Power & Light Company, Tide Water Power Company and Virginia Public Service Company.

What chance, in such a LABYRINTH OF ALIBIS, GETAWAYS AND HIDING PLACES, has public regulation of rates and the theory of restricting the utility corporations to "a fair return on the fair value of their investment"?

Do you not think, Mr. Raskob, as the leader of a party of the people, that you have here the foundation and material for a POLITICAL ISSUE OF THE HIGHEST IMPORTANCE?
